Fourth Heat Wave of Summer Envelops State

TEMPERATURES

5 DROWNINGS REPORTED DURING PAST 2 DAYS OF WEEK-END

LUVERNE AND PIPESTONE HAVE 103 AND HASTINGS 102 DEGREES

St. Paul, Minn., July 27.—(U.P.)—The fourth heat wave of the summer was upon Minnesota today sending temperatures toward the 100 mark and taking its toll of deaths.

Five drownings were reported during the past two days as thousands sought relief from the scorching temperatures. They included:

Louis Klage, 23, Winona, who drowned in the Mississippi river while canoeing.

Richard McLane, 27, Graceville, who drowned in Long Lake, near Long Prairie.

Jack Thull, 15, Fargo, who died in a vain attempt to swim to a raft in West Cormanant lake, near Detroit Lakes.

William Albright, 30, Graceville, who drowned in Long lake, near Long Prairie.

Percy Essler, 25, St. Peter, drowned in Lake Emily.

Among the high temperatures reported in the state were Luverne and Pipestone, 103, and Hastings, 102. In the Twin Cities the mercury lacked one degree of passing the hundred mark.

Continued warm weather was predicted by the weather bureau, indicating that the present hot spell may continue until the end of the month.

Forest fires were reported between Ely and Two Harbors in sparsely populated sections near the Superior national forest. A crew of fire fighters was dispatched by airplane from Tower.

The men landed on a lake near the fire which is not close to any highways or habitation.

One heat prostration was reported in Minneapolis. Patrick Hoy, 64, collapsed at his home and was taken to general hospital in a serious condition.

Sprinkling was prohibited in both St. Paul and Minneapolis during the supper hours. The ban will not be lifted until the water pressure in the two cities raises.

The temperature at 1 P. M. was 98 and the mercury still was rising.

Th continued drought has resulted in a shortage of 6.15 inches in the normal amount of rainfall thus far this year, and in a shortage of 2.69 inches in the normal amount for the month.

Madison, Wis., July 27.—(U.P.)—Four persons were killed and one seriously injured in two automobile accidents near here over the week end.

Ruth Witt, 19, Portage and L. A. Verne Dubois, 18, Baraboo, died when their car turned over in a ditch.

Mrs. Clarence Edge and Erwin L. Brown, 22, both of Madison, died in a head on collision with a car which police said was driven by Donald Coombs, Madison, who was injured.

Windom, Minn., July 27.—(U.P.)—Lyle Matsen, Jackson, Minn., a student at the University of North Dakota, was killed yesterday when his car went off the road and overturned near here. Matsen was returning home from a six weeks training period at the R. O. T. C. camp at Fort Snelling.

Hewitt, Minn., July 27.—(U.P.)—William Watkins, Sr., Hewitt, was injured fatally, his wife is not expected to recover, and eight persons were injured when two automobiles collided at a blind corner three miles west of here yesterday. Watkins was driving one car, and Carl Barnstner was the driver of the second automobile.

Mrs. Watkins died today. She and her husband are survived by 13 children.

CONDONE TEMPORARY WAGE CUTTING IF FOUND NECESSARY

Washington, July 27.—(U.P.)—Secretary of Commerce Lamont has placed the administration on record as condoning temporary wage cutting in some cases where industries are in extremely difficult position, it was revealed today in correspondence made public by the commerce department.

Lamont made his position known in a letter to Rep. Condon, democrat, Massachusetts, in which the secretary declined to interfere with wage cutting in textile mills in Rhode Island, against which Condon protested and asked administration aid.

Rock Island, Ill., July 27.—(U.P.)—With only a dime between them, seven year old Stechani Skitzjek and ten year old Adele Veresh of Chicago eloped and got to Rock Island before police found them hiding in a sleeping car and sent them home. Stechani's first request after his elopement was stopped was that a police matron take his dime and "buy my girl a double chocolate ice cream cone."

THE CRIME

International Falls, Minn., July 27.—(U.P.)—Through the aid of an Indian interpreter, County Attorney J. J. Hadler and Sheriff Hugh Reidy today questioned witnesses in the Koochiching county jail regarding a shooting brawl in which two men were killed and two others wounded.

Richard Blain, 35, and William Fidelity, 25, both unmarried, were slain in the shooting 12 miles west of Ray, near the St. Louis county line late Saturday night. The wounded were Paul Goose, 11, and Bobby Johnson, 8. Both are expected to recover.

Two of the witnesses, John Raish and Margaret Johnson, have been released while the others will be held pending word from the Indian agent at Cass Lake. Those held were Frank Dick, John Dunn, Jack Raish and Margaret Roy. David Roy was acting as interpreter for the officials.

All the witnesses were related to the dead men and officials said they appeared reluctant to talk. According to questions which were answered, however, it was learned John Blain shot William Findley and John Findley in turn shot Richard Blain, John's brother.

Deputy sheriffs today will search for the weapons used in the shooting, which occurred in heavy brush near Ray. A rifle and shotgun are believed to have been used.

GENCIES, RUBBER BOAT AND 2 KAJAK CANOES

Leningrad, Soviet Russia, July 27.—(U.P.)—The Graf Zeppelin was well on her way toward the frozen Arctic wastes today on a flight over the north pole.

The great German dirigible, commanded by Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran of all her major flights, left Leningrad at 11:20 A. M. yesterday on the most perilous lap of the present polar cruise. The airship—famous for its world girdling tour in 1929 and other notable flights—carried 16 passengers and 30 members of the crew.

The course lay over the ice fields of the Arctic which brought disaster to Gen. Umberto Nobile's airship Italia in 1928. Dr. Eckener admitted that weather conditions would tend to alter the course but scientists aboard hoped to make extensive experiments and perhaps discover various areas of unknown land.

The dirigible is using both long and short-wave radio apparatus, with two operators working simultaneously to keep in constant touch with the world through European, Russian and Arctic stations.

The Graf carried four rafts for emergencies. Fourteen persons can ride each raft. There also was a rubber boat and two kajak canoes, all of which could be equipped with wireless.

Embarrassing Moments for Man 'Given a Ride'

San Francisco, July 27.—(U.P.)—Robert Evans, 46, explained to police it was all very embarrassing. Two men, he said, took him automobile riding, quarrelled with him, took his clothes away and dumped him out a block from home, in broad daylight. "And that was a very long block, too," Evans explained.

Wickersham Commission Advocates New Penal System, Reformation Rather Than Punishment

AMERICAN SYSTEM
ALMOST FAILURE

"ANTIQUATED AND INEFFICIENT,
IT DOES NOT REFORM THE CRIMINAL"

"FAILS TO PROTECT SOCIETY, HARDENS PRISONER AND IN-CREASES CRIME"

Washington, July 27.—(U.P.)—A new penal system directed toward reformation of the criminal rather than punishment was advocated today by the Wickersham commission. It indicated the present American system as an almost complete failure.

"We conclude that the present system is antiquated and inefficient," the commission said.

"It does not reform the criminal. It fails to protect society. There is reason to believe that it contributes to the increase of crime by hardening the prisoner."

"We are convinced that a new type of penal institution must be developed, one that is new in spirit, in method and objective."

The commission's findings and recommendations were contained in a 344-page report to President Hoover on "penal institutions, probation and parole."

Prisons, the commission said, should "reshape the interests, attitude, habits, the total character of the individual so as to release him both competent and willing to find a way of adjusting himself to the community without further law violation."

Contrasting with this ideal, it found most prisons actually to be obsolete, over-crowded and unsanitary places in which the inmates deteriorate in character and health.

It found "barbarous methods" of punishment in use. It found little being done to educate the criminal.

"In some prisons there are dark cells or semi-dark cells where men are kept on bread and water for as long as two weeks and sometimes more than that," the report said. "In some prisons the men are shackled to the doors. In one, at least, there is still an occasional use of the straight-jacket. Eight prisons still use the strap. Eight prisons admit handcuffing men to the doors."

"Recent prison riots have brought to light the existence of barbarous methods of discipline that were unknown or denied."

The entire system was condemned as a failure in three respects: "The prison has failed as a business enterprise. With few exceptions our prison system is a costly and a dependent institution. We spend an average of $350 a year for the maintenance of each individual prisoner in our penal institutions."

"The prison has failed as an educational institution. No one claims that men who are released are better equipped to accept an honest role in the world than they were before commitment."

"The prison has failed as a disciplinary institution. The riots, the (Continued on Page 8, Column 4)

REORGANIZING
FEDERAL DRY FORCE
IN MINNESOTA

St. Paul, July 27.—(U.P.)—Reorganization of the federal prohibition force in Minnesota was announced today by M. L. Harney, northwest prohibition administrator.

Four new sub-district headquarters have been opened at Rochester, Bemidji, Mankato and Willmar, he said. They will supplement the work done by the stations at St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Detroit Lakes.

A regular agent will be stationed at each of the sub-offices and will be responsible for prohibition conditions in that and adjoining counties.

The local agent will map out a program of raids in conjunction with the state headquarters, with each county in the state visited at least every two months, Harney said.

FARMERS FIGHT TO QUELL PEST OF GRASSHOPPERS

ON PLAINS AND IN CAPITALS, ON AIR AND ON GROUND, THEY RALLY FORCES

AIRPLANES USED TO SPRAY POI-SONS OVER FIELDS HOPPERS ARE DEVASTATING

Lincoln, Neb., July 27.—(U.P.)—On the plains and in the capitals, in the air and on the ground, farmers and politicians of the midwest rallied their forces today for a bitter fight against an invading horde of grasshoppers which was sweeping the section bare of vegetation.

While political leaders took their appeals for aid to the state and national capitals, farmers battled individually and in groups along many fronts and airplanes droned over fields where the hoppers were thickest.

Devouring everything that contained vegetable fiber as they marched, the grasshopper horde had laid barren many counties in South Dakota and Nebraska, caused much damage along the borders of Minnesota and Iowa and still was marching on.

Bonfires dotted the plains of many counties as farmers raked the dead "hoppers into piles and burned them."

Many strange stories were told of the "hoppers eating wagon tongues, fence posts and clothing. Around Buffalo, Neb., farmers made a feeble effort to recoup some of their losses by scooping up the dead "hoppers, packing them and selling them to fishermen for bait at 20 cents a pound."

One of the most serious aspects of the situation was that livestock in scores of counties was being robbed of food. More than 3,000 head of cattle were shipped last week from South Dakota counties to northern Nebraska. In South Dakota, a long drought had almost ruined the crops when the grasshoppers swarmed in to complete the destruction.

Within the last few days it has become a common sight in that state to see whole families moving northward in covered wagons, driving their half starved herds before them.

So serious has the drought and grasshopper situation become around Bloomfield, Neb., that the famous "Bloomfield pay-as-you-go" plan practically has been abandoned. The town gained national attention three years ago when all its residents and residents of nearby farms agreed not to transact any business on credit. This year the farmers have been deprived of their incomes and the plan has broken down.

With divisions of the grasshopper army already marching across the border and into the alfalfa and corn fields of western Iowa, state aid for the anti-hopper fight has been asked in that state by the state farm bureau.

IS FREED AGAIN

THREATENED A DOUGLAS COUN-TY JAILER AND FIRED
FIVE SHOTS

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO WALKED
PAST CUSTODIAN CARRYING BABY IN HIS ARMS

Superior, Wis., July 27.—(U.P.)—Clarance W. (Red) Haggerty, elusive Twin City narcotic peddler, was free again today after threatening a Douglas county jailer and firing five shots when he was almost recaptured.

Haggerty escaped several months ago when he walked past ex-Jailer Edward Moe carrying a baby in his arms. He had borrowed a visitor's child and calmly walked out to freedom.

When no one else was in jail except prisoners, Haggerty called Jailer Louis Anderson to his cell, Sunday afternoon. He stuck a gun into the jailer's ribs and forced Anderson to unlock his cell door. After gaining the alley between the court house and the jail, Haggerty fired five shots at the jailer who attempted to recapture him. Anderson was not wounded and Haggerty made good his escape.

After his first escape, Haggerty was recaptured in St. Paul and again attempted to get away by jumping out of an automobile moving at 35 miles an hour. He broke his leg and was brought back to Superior when it had healed.

Less than a week ago Haggerty received the news that his appeal to circuit court of appeals at St. Louis on a previous sentence of nine years to Leavenworth prison on a narcotic law violation had been denied. He is now facing another charge of possession of $5,000 worth of narcotics as a result of his arrest several months ago. His case was set for trial August 3.

Sheriff Frank Carlson said Haggerty must have received the gun through the jail window because he had not allowed contact with visitors since Haggerty's return. City and county police cars and extra deputies searched the city for the prisoner.

MT. CLEMENS, MICH.

Mt. Clemens, Mich., July 27.—(U.P.)—Pessimism was rife at the jail here today. Mrs. Anna Deniskuk is back for 90 days. A few days ago the buxom lady came in drunk and wrenched away faucets, flooding the jail. In the padded cell, she ripped up the padding. Deputies sighed relief when her term ended. She went straight home and beat up her husband.

AND WIFE START ON "CIRCLE" TRIP

TO FLY OVER SELDOM TRAV-ERSED AIR TRAILS OF THE NORTH

THROUGH CANADA, ALASKA, SI-BERIA AND JAPAN TO TOKIO

New York, July 27.—(U.P.)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife will start today the first leg of their "great circle" trip which is planned to take them across seldom traversed air trails of Canada, Alaska, Siberia and Japan to Tokyo.

Their Lockheed Sirius monoplane is ready at North Beach airport, L. I., and will soar for Washington this afternoon. There they will remain "a day or two," Lindbergh told the United Press today, and then start northward, perhaps making a stop here overnight.

In any case, after Washington they will stop at North Haven, Me., summer residence of Senator Dwight Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's father. Thence, their itinerary calls for a flight to Ottawa for an overnight stop, and then launching forth for a journey northward across Canada to Alaska.

It is a leisurely trip they have scheduled. Though it calls for visits to out of the way corners of the earth, on a 7,000-mile route, it has been carefully plotted and caches of gasoline await them enroute.

From Ottawa, they fly to Moose Factory and Churchill and then across the "barren lands" of northwestern Canada to Lake Baker and Akavik in the delta of the Mackenzie river. The Canadian government has made available caches of gasoline along this route, and Lindbergh has seen to it that other supplies are ready at Point Barrow and Nome, Alaska.

From that point they will skirt above the Bering Sea to Karaginsk (Siberia); Petrolavsk (Kamchatka Peninsula); the Kurile Islands; Nemuro, Japan, and Tokyo. Later they will visit China.

Their plans call for a return flight but probably not over the same route for Lindbergh says that "going over the same route home would be monotonous."

They carry 50 pounds of emergency food for the event of a landing in an out-of-reach spot; about the same poundage of water; 350 gallons of gasoline (average) and two pistols for game hunting or protection in a wilderness.

Durant, Okla., July 27.—(U.P.)—Governor Alfalfa Bill Murray's guardsmen today said that they would allow cars to pass the toll bridge, indicating that the governor has abandoned his plans of defying the federal court injunction.

There was no rush to take advantage of the privilege and no car had crossed at 7:30 a. m., all traffic using the new free bridge.

Though Governor Murray had an appointment with sound movie men here today he was not in camp. Officers believed him in Oklahoma City and professed ignorance of his plans.

At 10 p. m. last night a car was turned back by an automatic rifleman. No more attempts to use the bridge were made during the night though the guards permitted visitors to pass through the "martial law" zone to the bridgehead.

CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES INSISTS

By RAFAEL FUSONI
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Santiago, Chile, July 27.—(U.P.)—Carlos Ibanez, deposed president of Chile, has fled across the border into Argentina, it was announced today at Moneda Palace, the presidential residence.

Ibanez, his strong rule in Chile broken by a popular uprising, left the country early today, while his status was still undetermined by congress. He retired from the presidency provisionally, but the chamber of deputies insisted that he be deprived of any claim to the presidency.

The chamber approved a project today for a four-day national moratorium on debts.

Santiago, Chile, July 27. — General Carlos Ibanez Del Campo was in hiding today, shorn of his presidential power.

A wild popular uprising forced him to relinquish his authority and to turn over the government to Pedro Agapote Teltier, president of the senate.

Duen Esteban assumed office as premier. Aided by Opazote and the popular Pedro Blanquiere, he formed a new cabinet. The new ministers were sworn in and Montero announced they would guarantee constitutional liberty and public order.

The president's action came as a climax to two weeks of political unrest and disorders during which at least 30 persons were killed and scores were badly hurt. He relinquished the authority which he had wielded in dictatorial fashion for the past four years.

Congress met in tumultuous session last night to debate the president's plea that he be permitted to retain his title but go abroad for a year. The senate approved his request, but the chamber of deputies, after a confused session in which demonstrators forced their way into the chamber, voted unanimously to reject the petition. They demanded General Ibanez make his resignation full and complete. He announced he had "temporarily relinquished" his authority and retired to Moneda Palace, the president's headquarters.

Heavy guards around the United States embassy aroused a report the president had sought asylum there. This was denied and the United Press learned Ibanez was still at Moneda Palace awaiting word from congress on his petition.

Premier Montero, in his first statement to the press, said the new government would seek a solution of the economic crisis which was blamed for the unrest which proved Ibanez' undoing.

Mobs swarmed through the streets, they were unruly but casualties were small.

A 10-year-old girl was killed by a volley of shots which carabinieri fired into one mob—the first casualty after the downfall of the government. The crowd had attempted to storm the club of the carabinieri in Santo Domingo street and several volleys were exchanged.

The mob, violent at times, in the main was a joyous throng marching and singing through the streets. Occasional outbursts occurred, however, and the office of the newspaper La Nacion was stormed. The building was practically deserted.

Student bands that had led the disorders returned to the university and took possession of the grounds from which they had been evicted during the controversy.

General Ibanez' unpopularity was demonstrated during the unorganized parades. The people shouted "down with Ibanez!" at frequent intervals. His loyal carabinieri were hooted and attacked, while soldiers sent to patrol the streets fraternized with the throngs. Pretty senoritas, excited by the events, rushed into the ranks to kiss the troops.

St. Paul, July 27.—(U.P.)—Savings deposits of Minnesota's state and savings banks as of June 30, 1931, amounted to $144,775,062, an increase of $97,583 as compared to March 25, 1931, J. N. Peyton, commissioner of banks, announced today.

Consolidated resources of the state and savings banks and the trust companies as of June 30 were given as $414,960,359, a decline of more than $8,000,000 as compared to the March 25 figures.

Contrasting with this ideal, it found most prisons actually to be obsolete, over-crowded and unsanitary places in which the inmates deteriorate in character and health.

It found "barbarous methods" of punishment in use. It found little being done to educate the criminal.

"In some prisons there are dark cells or semi-dark cells where men are kept on bread and water for as long as two weeks and sometimes more than that," the report said. "In some prisons the men are shackled to the doors. In one, at least, there is still an occasional use of the straight jacket. Eight prisons still use the strap. Eight prisons admit handcuffing men to the doors."

Recent prison riots have brought to light the existence of barbarous methods of discipline that were unknown or denied.

The entire system was condemned as a failure in three respects: "The prison has failed as a business enterprise. With few exceptions our prison system is a costly and a dependent institution. We spend an average of $350 a year for the maintenance of each individual prisoner in our penal institutions."

"The prison has failed as an educational institution. No one claims that men who are released are better equipped to accept an honest role in the world than they were before commitment."

"The prison has failed as a disciplinary institution. The riots, (Continued on Page 8, Column 6)

REORGANIZING
FEDERAL DRY FORCE
IN MINNESOTA

St. Paul, July 27.—(U.P.)—Reorganization of the federal prohibition force in Minnesota was announced today by M. L. Harney, northwest prohibition administrator.

Four new sub-district headquarters have been opened at Rochester, Bemidji, Mankato and Willmar, he said. They will supplement the work done by the stations at St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth and Detroit Lakes.

A regular agent will be stationed at each of the sub-offices and will be responsible for prohibition conditions in that and adjoining counties.

The local agent will map out a program of raids in conjunction with the state headquarters, with each county in the state visited at least every two months, Harney said.

Lincoln, Neb., July 27.—(U.P.)—On the plains and in the capitals, in the air and on the ground, farmers and politicians of the midwest rallied their forces today for a bitter fight against an invading horde of grasshoppers which was sweeping the section bare of vegetation.

While political leaders took their appeals for aid to the state and national capitals, farmers battled individually and in groups along many fronts and airplanes droned through the air, spraying poison over fields where the hoppers were thickest.

Devouring everything that contained vegetable fiber as they marched, the grasshopper horde had laid barren many counties in South Dakota and Nebraska, caused much damage along the borders of Minnesota and Iowa and still was marching on.

Bonfires dotted the plains of many counties as farmers raked the dead hoppers into piles and burned them.

Many strange stories were told of the hoppers eating wagon tongues, fence posts and clothing. Around Buffalo, Neb., farmers made a feeble effort to recoup some of their losses by scooping up the dead hoppers, packing them and selling them to fishermen for bait at 20 cents a pound.

One of the most serious aspects of the situation was that livestock in scores of counties was being robbed of food. More than 3,000 head of cattle were shipped last week from South Dakota counties to northern Nebraska. In South Dakota, a long drought had almost ruined the crops when the grasshoppers swarmed in to complete the destruction.

Within the last few days it has be-

RED HAGGERTY,
NARCOTIC PEDDLER,
IS FREED AGAIN

THREATENED A DOUGLAS COUN-TY JAILER AND FIRED
FIVE SHOTS

SEVERAL MONTHS AGO WALKED
PAST CUSTODIAN CARRYING
BABY IN HIS ARMS

Superior, Wis., July 27.—(U.P.)—Clarence W. (Red) Haggerty, elusive Twin City narcotic peddler, was free again today after threatening a Douglas county jailer and firing five shots when he was almost recaptured.

Haggerty escaped several months ago when he walked past ex-Jailer Edward Moe carrying a baby in his arms. He had borrowed a visitor's child and calmly walked out to freedom.

When no one else was in jail except prisoners, Haggerty called Jailer Louis Anderson to his cell, Sunday afternoon. He stuck a gun into the jailer's ribs and forced Anderson to unlock his cell door. After gaining the alley between the court house and the jail, Haggerty fired five shots at the jailer, who attempted to recapture him. Anderson was not wounded and Haggerty made good his escape.

After his first escape, Haggerty was recaptured in St. Paul and again attempted to get away by jumping out of an automobile moving at 35 miles an hour. He broke his leg and was brought back to Superior when it had healed.

Less than a week ago Haggerty received the news that his appeal to circuit court of appeals at St. Louis on a previous sentence of nine years to Leavenworth prison on a narcotic law violation had been denied. He is now facing another charge of possession of $5,000 worth of narcotics as a result of his arrest several months ago. His case was set for trial August 3.

Sheriff Frank Carlson said Haggerty must have received the gun through the jail window because he had not allowed contact with visitors since Haggerty's return. City and county police cars and extra deputies searched the city for the prisoner.

From that point they will skirt above the Bering Sea to Karaginsk (Siberia); Petropavsk (Kamchatka Peninsula); the Kurile Islands; Nemuro, Japan, and Tokyo. Later they will visit China.

Their plans call for a return flight but probably not over the same route for Lindbergh says that "going over the same route home would be monotonous."

They carry 50 pounds of emergency food for the event of a landing in an out-of-reach spot; about the same poundage of water; 350 gallons of gasoline (average) and two pistols for game hunting or protection in a wilderness.

INJUNCTION

Durant, Okla., July 27.—(U.P.)—Governor Alfalfa Bill Murray's guardsmen today said that they would allow cars to pass the toll bridge, indicating that the governor has abandoned his plans of defying the federal court injunction.

There was no rush to take advantage of the privilege and no car had crossed at 7:30 a. m., all traffic using the new free bridge.

Though Governor Murray had an appointment with sound movie men here today he was not in camp. Officers believed him in Oklahoma City and professed ignorance of his plans.

At 10 p. m. last night a car was turned back by an automatic rifleman. No more attempts to use the bridge were made during the night though the guards permitted visitors to pass through the "martial law" zone to the bridgehead.

CARLOS IBANEZ RULE BROKEN BY POPULAR UPRISING

RETIRES FROM PRESIDENCY OF COUNTRY PROVISION-ALLY

CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES INSISTS
HE BE DEPRIVED OF ANY CLAIMS

By RAFAEL FUSONI
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Santiago, Chile, July 27.—(U.P.)—Carlos Ibanez, deposed president of Chile, has fled across the border into Argentina, it was announced today at Moneda Palace, the presidential residence.

Ibanez, his strong rule in Chile broken by a popular uprising, left the country early today, while his status was still undetermined by congress. He retired from the presidency provisionally, but the chamber of deputies insisted that he be deprived of any claim to the presidency.

The chamber approved a project today for a four-day national moratorium on debts.

Santiago, Chile, July 27. — General Carlos Ibanez Del Camp was in hiding today, shorn of his presidential power. A wild popular uprising forced him to relinquish his authority and to turn over the government to Petro Apazote Teltier, president of the senate.

Duen Esteban assumed office as premier. Aided by Opazote and the popular Pedro Blanquiere, he formed a new cabinet. The new ministers were sworn in and Montero announced they would guarantee constitutional liberty and public order.

The president's action came as a climax to two weeks of political unrest and disorders during which at least 30 persons were killed and scores were badly hurt. He relinquished the authority which he had wielded in dictatorial fashion for the past four years.

Congress met in tumultuous session last night to debate the president's plea that he be permitted to retain his title but go abroad for a year. The senate approved his request, but the chamber of deputies, after a confused session in which demonstrators forced their way into the chamber, voted unanimously to reject the petition. They demanded General Ibanez make his resignation full and complete. He announced he had "temporarily relinquished" his authority and retired to Moneda Palace, the president's headquarters.

Heavy guards around the United States embassy aroused a report the president had sought asylum there. This was denied and the United Press learned Ibanez was still at Moneda Palace awaiting word from congress on his petition.

Premier Montero, in his first statement to the press, said the new government would seek a solution of the economic crisis which was blamed for the unrest which proved Ibanez' undoing.

Mobs swarmed through the streets, they were unruly but casualties were small.

A 10-year-old girl was killed by a volley of shots which carabinieri fired into one mob—the first casualty after the downfall of the government. The crowd had attempted to storm the club of the carabinieri in Santo Domingo street and several volleys were exchanged.

The mob, violent at times, in the main, joyous throng marching and singing through the streets. Occasional outbursts occurred, however, and the office of the newspaper La Nacion was stormed. The building was practically deserted.

Student bands that had led the disorders returned to the university and took possession of the grounds from which they had been evicted during the controversy.

General Ibanez' unpopularity was demonstrated during the unorganized parades. The people shouted "down with Ibanez!" at frequent intervals. His loyal carabinieri were hooted and attacked, while soldiers sent to patrol the streets fraternized with the throngs. Pretty senoritas, excited by the events, rushed into the ranks to kiss the troops.

SAVINGS DEPOSITS IN STATE BANKS ARE INCREASING

St. Paul, July 27.—(U.P.)—Savings deposits of Minnesota's state and savings banks as of June 30, 1931, amounted to $144,775,062, an increase of $97,583 as compared to March 25, 1931, J. N. Payson, commissioner of banks, announced today.

Consolidated resources of the state and savings banks and the trust companies as of June 30 were given as $414,990,329, a decline of more than $6,000,000 as compared to the March 25 figures.

Pres. Hoover Prolongs

PATRICK T. FAGAN BALKS ATTEMPT TO "PUT HIM ON SPOT"

BATTLES HIS ASSASSIN, KILLING
MAN IN MINE STRIKE FEUD

FIGHTS DESPERATELY, SEIZES ATTACKER'S GUN AND SHOOT HIM DOWN

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 27.—(AP)—Patrick T. Fagan, old line mine union leader, balked an attempt today to "put him on the spot" in the Pennsylvania coal mine strike feud, and, battling his assassin, killed the man.

Fagan fought his attacker desperately, and finally seizing the latter's gun, shot him down. The man, according to police, was Patrick Murphy of Little Run Temple, Tex., who had been sent north from district 19, United Mine Workers of America, in Tennessee, with another man, Fred Hatfield, who said he was a cousin of the late Sid Hatfield, famed West Virginia mountain feudist, but who was booked as Edward Snyder, 39, of Fleming, Ky. Police believed the attempt to kill Fagan was the upshot of a controversy within the United Mine Workers. As they reconstructed the tragedy, the men who slunk up to Fagan's porch in the early morning hours shortly after midnight represented insurgents in the United Mine Workers, who opposed the "conservative" trend of the union's course in the Pennsylvania strike.

The United has made its peace with the gigantic Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, but some insurgents fought this agreement, just as has the National Mine Workers Union, "radical" organization with Communistic elements opposing the coal companies bitterly.

Fagan was held for the coroner when arraigned in central police court today. At the request of detectives, who predicted additional arrests, "including that of the man behind the murder plot," Snyder was ordered held for further investigation.

Fagan told police he had just finished a midnight lunch with his family and stepped on the porch of his home for a smoke.

"A taxicab passed my house and stopped," Fagan said. "A man got out and came up asking me if I was Fagan. I told him I was."

"I'm from District 19 in Tennessee," he said. My son, standing in the doorway screamed as the fellow stuck a revolver against my chest.

"My good man, you don't need a gun to talk to me," I told him. I grabbed his arm. We tussled and rolled down the terrace into the street."

Fagan stuck a finger between the firing pin and trigger of his assailant's .38 calibre pearl-handled revolver, delaying the shooting a moment. When the shot came, it went wild.

Fagan said the man dropped the gun and ran. He picked it up and fired twice. One shot penetrated the stranger's temple, killing him instantly.

Nine persons have been killed in the tri-state district during the present strike, marked by bitter battles between the National Miners' Union, the radical, avowedly communistic element and the more conservative United Mine Workers.

Fagan, 43, for years has been a leader of the United. As president of the local district he largely was responsible for the agreement entered into by the union and the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company.

The agreement, calling for recognition of the union by the company, was assailed bitterly by the National Miners' Union. They claimed United Mine Workers "again have sold out the miners to the operators" and refused to return to work. They picketed mines, urging desertion of the United and allegiance to the National organization.

The shooting today was the first violence reported in the local district since the rally at Canonsburg, Pa., last Sunday when National miners broke up a meeting of the United Mine Workers and when Fagan was clubbed over the head with part of a chair torn from the speakers' platform.

TO INVESTIGATE DEATH OF CHILD

BOW'S FORMER SWEETHEART,
HARRY RICHMAN

HELEN WALSH AND VIRGINIA
BIDDLE NOW IN GREENPORT,
L. I. HOSPITAL

Greenport, L. I., July 27.—(AP)—Two glorified Follies beauties feared possible termination of their stage careers today by burns received in an explosion aboard the yacht of Clara Bow's former sweetheart, Harry Richman, star of the Follies. The blast also injured Richman and Mark Hel-linger, Broadway columnist, both of whom leaped into the water to rescue other victims.

Helen Walsh and Virginia Biddle, two dark-eyed members of the chorus, tossed on hospital cots and prayed the flames which seared their faces and bodies would not permanently disfigure their brunette beauty.

The only member of the yachting party of six to escape unhurt was Gladys Glad, Hellinger's wife, often called the most beautiful of show girls. Richman and Hellinger were burned about the arms and legs and Robert Levy, Richman's chauffeur, suffered superficial burns. Samuel White, skipper, was burned about the face and thrown onto a dock by the blast.

Miss Walsh was so badly injured it was feared at first she would die and the last rites of the Catholic church were administered.

"My face is my living, and I hope it isn't burned," she moaned, after Hellinger and Richman had rescued her, her clothes aflame, from the cabin.

The five Follies artists and Levy—Hellinger wrote one of the skits in the new Ziegfeld show—had gone aboard Richman's newly purchased Chevalmar II for a week-end fishing cruise after the performance Saturday night, at Beechhurst. The girls slept in the cabin. The men took turns at the wheel.

After the fueling, Hellinger started to cast off. As Levy attempted to start the engine a terrific blast ripped through the craft and flames shot out of the cabin.

Hellinger jumped inside and found Miss Walsh pinned to the floor under a flaming mattress. He pulled her free and Richman carried her out and jumped overboard with her. Levy pushed Miss Biddle and Miss Glad through the forward hatch to safety. Hellinger, his shirt ablaze, leaped overboard and helped Richman support Miss Walsh.

STOCK MARKET IN DOWNWARD DRIFT

DEALINGS ON SMALL SCALE,
PRICES IN FRACTIONAL
DROP

By ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, July 27.—The stock market drifted down fractionally at the opening today, with dealings on a small scale.

Numerous selling orders in U. S. Steel were grouped into a block of 4,000 shares and disposed of at 89 5/8 off 5/8 at the outset. The issue firmed up fractionally from that level in the early trading on the theory a reduction in the dividend rate had been discounted.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation, whose directors meet Thursday for dividend action, held unchanged at 41 5/8. Other cuts and bruises.

American Telephone was at 173 5/8 off 3/8; Standard Oil of New Jersey 36 5/8 off 1/4; New York Central 80 1/4 off 1/4; National Biscuit 56 3/4 off 1/8; Auburn Auto 155 1/4; North American 66 1/2 off 1/4; Allied Chemical 112 off 1/4; Radio 16 7/8 off 1/4, and Case 68, unchanged.

FIVE PEOPLE INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Red Wing, Minn., July 27.—(AP)—Five people were recovering from cuts and bruises suffered in an automobile accident that occurred late Sunday afternoon, 7 miles north of here.

The injured were Mr. and Mrs. William Galloway, St. Paul; Dorothy Lynch, Marial and Freda Robinson, all of Racine, Wis.

The Galloways had gone to Racine to bring the three girls back from a vacation spent in that city, when their car struck R. A. Wise, Delano. All suffered cuts and bruises.

ROASTING PROCESS HAS ACCURACY OF ANCIENT TIMEPIECE

Hour-glass and Hills Bros.
Method of Roasting Coffee
Operate a Little at a Time

It is fascinating to watch an hour-glass flowing evenly, continuously, a little at a time. But the flavor of coffee that's roasted continuously, a little at a time, is even more fascinating!

Controlled Roasting—Hills Bros.' patented process—is the only such roasting method. As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow... a little at a time... so the marvelous flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee is produced by this patented process that roasts evenly, continuously... a little at a time.

There is a vast difference between Controlled Roasting and ordinary bulk-roasting methods. There is a vast difference in results too! Controlled Roasting flawlessly completes the work that Nature began in the coffee-berry. It develops the flavor perfectly! You have never tasted the like, if you have never tasted Hills Bros. Coffee.

Remember also that this coffee never varies in flavor. And it is always fresh! Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of Hills Bros.' vacuum cans. Ordinary, "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. Order Hills Bros. Coffee today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trademark on the can.

Miss Walsh was so badly injured it was feared at first she would die and the last rites of the Catholic church were administered.

"My face is my living, and I hope it isn't burned," she moaned, after Hellinger and Richman had rescued her, her clothes aflame, from the cabin.

The five Follies artists and Levy—Hellinger wrote one of the skits in the new Ziegfeld show—had gone aboard Richman's newly purchased Chevalmar II for a week-end fishing cruise after the performance Saturday night, at Beechhurst. The girls slept in the cabin. The men took turns at the wheel.

After the fueling, Hellinger started to cast off. As Levy attempted to start the engine a terrific blast ripped through the craft and flames shot out of the cabin.

Hellinger jumped inside and found Miss Walsh pinned to the floor under a flaming mattress. He pulled her free and Richman carried her out and jumped overboard with her. Levy pushed Miss Biddle and Miss Glad through the forward hatch to safety. Hellinger, his shirt ablaze, leaped overboard and helped Richman support Miss Walsh.

STOCK MARKET IN DOWNWARD DRIFT

DEALINGS ON SMALL SCALE,
PRICES IN FRACTIONAL
DROP

By ELMER C. WALZER
(United Press Financial Editor)

New York, July 27.—The stock market drifted down fractionally at the opening today, with dealings on a small scale.

Numerous selling orders in U. S. Steel were grouped into a block of 4,000 shares and disposed of at 89 5/8 off 5-8 at the outset. The issue firmed up fractionally from that level in the early trading on the theory a reduction in the dividend rate had been discounted.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation, whose directors meet Thursday for dividend action, held unchanged at 41 5/8.

American Telephone was at 173 5/8 off 3/8; Standard Oil of New Jersey 36 5/8 off 1/4; New York Central 80 1/4 off 1/4; National Biscuit 56 3/4 off 1/8; Auburn Auto 155 1/4; North American 66 1/2 off 1; Allied Chemical 112 off 1; Radio 16 7/8 off 1/4, and Case 68, unchanged.

FIVE PEOPLE INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Red Wing, Minn., July 27.—(U.P.)—Five people were recovering from cuts and bruises suffered in an automobile accident that occurred late Sunday afternoon, 7 miles north of here.

The injured were Mr. and Mrs. William Galloway, St. Paul; Dorothy Lynch, Murial and Freda Robinson, all of Racine, Wis.

The Galloways had gone to Racine to bring the three girls back from a vacation spent in that city, when their car struck R. A. Wise, Delano. All suffered cuts and bruises.

GOOD...they've got to be good!

Service Clubs Active

SERVICE clubs of the city are active these days and their meetings are full of interest because of the annual influx of visitors. In some cases the roll of visitors looms almost as large as the local men in attendance.

These visitors are all men of importance in their respective clubs. When called upon for addresses or remarks they have real messages to impart. They are posted on conditions, on resources, on business opportunities in their respective districts. Their contributions made to local programs are of prime importance and are appreciated.

Many of the visitors are as regular in their habit of spending vacations in the Brainerd Lake Region as are the birds of the southland which migrate annually to the north. Their visits to the region here have become established as regular routine and they would no more think of missing their visit to the lake country here than to go without the daily cigar or their regular meals. Many, after a number of visits, invest in lake shore property and build summer homes.

A number of others, and may they increase appreciably, have remodeled lake homes and made them fit for year around habitation. And many local people, too, have made their permanent homes at the lakes. For instance, on the west shore of North Round Lake is a colony of some 20 homes of which a number of people maintain as permanent homes. They have electric lights, in some cases their own water systems with sufficient pressure to water their gardens, they have regular rural mail service, they are located alongside a trunk highway kept in fine shape and open the year around, they are but a half hour drive from Brainerd and they like the lake country.

Service clubs of the city augment the pleasant relationship existing between lake visitors and home people and the friendship in many cases leads to the establishment of homes in our lake country, followed by almost permanent residence extending beyond the regular season.

Hot Weather and Accidents

THE assertion that hot weather speeds up accidents on land and in water is borne out by the toll of the four heat waves suffered by the country. It seems that extreme sustained heat enervates body and nerves and vigilance relaxes. Persons become careless and take greater chances. In their desire to escape the heat they jump into the water without taking into consideration their mental or physical condition. Even good swimmers whose bodies revolt against unusual conditions become subject to cramps and other ills and sink under the waves.

Motorists relax and pay less attention to the traffic they meet, take the wrong side of the highway and crash headon or swerve into the ditch. Extremely hot weather causes a high mortality among old tires. These blow-up and endanger traffic. People engrossed in repair work forget that others have rights on the highways and block travel or impede it by taking up more than their rightful share of the highway. Accidents follow in their train.

Hay Fever Sufferers Dejected

NEWS that Thomas A. Edison, great inventor, may retire permanently from research work is sad tidings for a lot of hay fever sufferers. Mr. Edison was about to solve the problem of converting goldenrod into synthetic rubber.

If there is anything that makes a hay fever sufferer smart at the eyes and drip at the nose it's the thought of goldenrod and the vegetation's pollen which is about as suffocating to his tender nostrils and breathing apparatus as a cloud of talcum at a barbershop where the officious barber douses the victim in his chair with a flood of that borated stuff.

If goldenrod rubber were "made a go," it would at least result in harvesting the crop of potential hay fever and diverting it to useful fields and thus relieving the snifflers and snufflers from one disturbing cause of their annual complaint.

Get Many Inquiries from Distant Lands

"FROM Greenland's Icy Mountains, from India's Coral Strand, we're getting queries daily, on our vacation land." So says H. C. Hotaling, secretary of the Ten Thousand Lakes-Greater Minnesota Association, and to prove it he has just issued a bulletin which he has labelled the "Then Thousand List."

It contains the names of ten individuals from ten different countries, living distances of approximately ten thousand miles from Minnesota, who have written to the Ten Thousand Lakes-Greater Minnesota Association for information concerning vacations in the land of ten thousand lakes. The list was headed by the ten thousandth inquiry to be published this year and the nine other inquiries from foreign countries followed.

Brainerd as a Game District

BRAINERD and the Brainerd Lake Region, center of a thousand lakes and many fur farms, center of much game and fish and other wild life, it would appear should be the seat of one of the ten new districts into which the state is to be re-organized. Why any one should think of awarding district honors to some other county with a paltry half dozen or so lakes and a few if any fur farms and fewer still inhabitants of wild life area, is beyond our comprehension unless politics is the governing factor in the matter.

The Brainerd district is entitled to some consideration because of its natural resources which call for supervision at first hand.

Pessimistic Stories

It seems an odd trait of human nature that pessimistic stories gain so much more circulation and consequently wider publicity than do those of an optimistic nature.

In days of depression it seems to be the style to give prominence to hard luck stories. In one's own affairs it becomes exceedingly tiresome to listen to such recitals. They get the teller of the stories "nowhere," they impress no one and they simply add to gloom.

EARLY potato reports are not so good in some places. The vegetable plants look good above ground but in some cases, when pulled up, show few or no potatoes.

Joe E. Brown, Ona Munson and William Collier, Jr., in a hilarious comedy riot, "Broad Minded," which will be shown at the Paramount Tuesday and Wednesday. Joe E. Brown again opens his cavernous mouth to afford you an evening chock full of laughs and fun.

Wins Beauty Crown

Dorothy Popp (above), 18, was crowned queen of Rumanian beauties in Chicago and is now impatiently awaiting the national beauty contest which will be held in Detroit Labor Day. She has high hopes of winning the coveted title of the most beautiful Rumanian girl in the U. S. and thus capture the prize trip to her native land.

Havana and Back in 17 Hours

Captain Frank Hawks, premier speed pilot of the world, is shown being greeted by prominent New York officials and his wife after his record-breaking flight to Havana and return in total elapsed time of a little more than 17 hours. Such time gave Hawks his breakfast in New York, lunch in Havana and dinner in New York. From New York to Havana, Hawks set a new mark of eight hours, eight minutes in his famous Texaco 13 monoplane, beating the recently set record of James Hall by 27 minutes. Returning he beat his own old record in flying the 1,400 miles in seven hours and 31 minutes. Left to right are: George Mann, of the New York Mayor's Reception Committee; Mrs. Hawks, Capt. Hawks and William Morgan, city official.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Itching, bleeding, protruding piles are caused by bad circulation of the blood in the affected parts. The parts become weak, flabby, almost dead. Only an internal remedy can remove the cause—that's why salves, suppositories and cutting fail. Dr. Leonhardt's prescription, HEM-ROID, succeeds because it removes congestion, restores circulation, heals and strengthens the diseased parts. HEM-ROID has such a wonderful record of quickly ending even piles of long standing, that H. P. Dunn, Johnson's Pharmacy say one bottle of HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile agony or money back. advt.

WAS GOLFING SENSATION TWO YEARS AGO WHEN HE WON HONORS IN 13 TOURNEYS

SHOWS THE WORLD HE MUST BE CONSIDERED AMONG TOP NOTCH PLAYERS AGAIN

St. Paul, Minn., July 27.—(U.P.)—Horton Smith, golfing sensation two years ago when he won honors in 13 tournaments, showed the world today that he must be considered among the top notch players again.

The tall Missouri golfer earned a $2,500 check, first prize money, with his score of 278, ten under par, against the field in the second annual St. Paul $10,000 Open. The field included most of the leading professionals and title holders in the world.

When Smith arrived early last week, he announced he was out for first place to let the world know he had recovered from his slump. He scored two 69's, then went five under par in yesterday's morning round and finished with 73, one over par. Smith won a first prize honor for the first time in fourteen months.

Harry Cooper, Chicago, who won first prize last year with 280, went around the 72 holes this year in one more stroke to take second place and win a check for $2,000.

Walter Hagen, Detroit, and George Von Elm, Los Angeles, were tied for third place with 284. Each received a check for $1,250.

Other prize winners and their scores were:

Ed Dudley, Wilmington,	$800	285
Johnny Goodman, amateur trophy		287
Joe Belfore, Duluth,	$500	287
Denny Shute, Brookside, O.,	$350	288

TAKE BOTH ENDS OF DOUBLE-HEADER FROM INDIANAPOLIS 9 TO 4, AND 4 TO 0

Louisville climbed a notch on the American association leaders yesterday, St. Paul, by taking both ends of its doubleheader from Indianapolis 9 to 4 and 4 to 0.

The Saints, meanwhile, were doing their best, but could win only one game because that was all they played. For the eighth consecutive time, however, they defeated their next-door neighbor, Minneapolis, 13 to 6.

Kansas City might have taken advantage of the Indianapolis defeat to get a real hold on third place, but didn't. The Blues went down 4 to 8 before Milwaukee, and thus hangs onto third place by just about 1-10 of a point, according to mathematicians who like their long division long.

Toledo lived up to expectations yesterday by doing nothing. It added two more defeats to its list, taking them from Columbus 4 to 6 and 1 to 2.

BRAINERD TEAM LOSES OVERTIME GAME 3-2

The Art Lyonsais Grocery baseball team lost to Harding Sunday afternoon by a count of 3 to 2 in a 10-inning pitchers' duel.

Joe Gabiou, Grocery hurler, held Harding to one hit for seven innings, but weakened in the eighth and allowed three hits which permitted Harding to score its first run.

Jim Gabiou replaced Joe and was touched for one hit and one run, tying the score at 2-2. Harding scored in the 10th on one hit, a walk and an error.

Players making the trip for the Grocery team were: Joe Gabiou, Larry Aro, Swanne Erickson, Ray Paine, John Gabiou, Jim Gabiou, Harry Goedertz, Art Lyonsais, Adolph Graf and Foster.

MACKMEN ARE SETTING PACE THAT IS BLISTERING

CONTINUE MARCH TO THIRD CONSECUTIVE AMERICAN LEAGUE PENNANT

TO BETTER ALL-TIME MAJOR LEAGUE RECORD OF 116 GAMES WON IN SEASON

By LEO H. PETERSEN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 27.—Connie Mack's world champion Philadelphia Athletics are setting a blistering pace in their march to a third consecutive American League pennant but the Athletics apparently have little prospect of realizing their ambition to better the all-time major league record of 116 games in a single season, established by the Chicago Cubs in 1906.

The Athletics have played 729 ball to date, with 70 victories and 26 defeats and can break the New York Yankees' American League record of 110 victories and 44 defeats if they play .707 ball for the remainder of the season—winning 41 of their remaining 58 games. To better the Chicago Cubs' 1906 average of .763 (116 victories and 36 defeats)—the Athletics would have to play .828 ball for the balance of the year, winning 48 of their remaining 58 contests.

The Athletics' latest winning streak of 13 games was snapped yesterday when the Cleveland Indians handed the Philadelphia team their most decisive defeat of the year, 13 to 2. Waite Hoyt, seeking his fifth consecutive victory, since joining the Athletics, was hammered for 15 hits and 10 runs in six innings and the Indians continued the attack on Rummel adding three runs on four hits. Mel Harder pitched for the Indians and allowed only 9 scattered hits.

St. Louis, the National League leader, also met strenuous opposition yesterday, dropping the first game of a double-header to Boston, 3 to 2, in 11 innings and barely nosing out a victory in the second game, 5 to 4. Boston now has a 7 to 5 advantage over St. Louis for the season.

Fine pitching by Fred Frankhouse and Sylvester Johnson featured the first game, neither allowing a run during the first 10 innings. Both weakened in the eleventh, and Boston batted in three runs, after which the Cardinals opened a two-run rally which caused Frankhouse's retirement before a batsman had been retired. Ed Brandt, Braves ace, stepped into the breach and saved the game.

Paul Derringer, Cards' rookie, had slightly the better of a pitching duel with Bruce Cunningham in the second game and lasted out the game despite a two-run rally by Boston in the 8th. Chicago fans also were treated to a pitching duel, with Pat Malone winning over Clive Dudley of the Philadelphia Phillies, 2 to 1. Malone and Dudley battled on even terms until the ninth when Charley Grimm's triple and a walk to Hartnett sent Dudley to the showers and brought Jumbo Elliott into the game as rescue pitcher. Elliott pitched only two balls, a foul strike and a wild pitch which let in the winning run and enabled the Cubs to advance to second place in the National League standings.

Brooklyn's double-header with Cincinnati brought out two shutout pitching performances. Larry Benton blanked the Robins in the first game although he allowed 10 hits while his mates made only seven off Hollis Thurston. The score was 4 to 0. Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn ace, turned in a three hit masterpiece and won the second game, 5 to 0.

The other National League teams, New York and Pittsburgh, were not scheduled.

Washington's Senators passed up an opportunity to gain on the league leading Athletics when they dropped a 5 to 2 decision to St. Louis. Sam Gray let the Senators down with seven

MILDRED DIDRIKSON BREAKS TWO WORLD RECORDS AT MEET

THOROUGHLY OUT - DISTANCES FIELD IN 3RD EVENT OF NEW YORK TRACK MEET

HAS MAGNIFICENT SCORN FOR BOYS, THINKS THEY ARE "AFRAID" OF HER

By HENRY McLEMORE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 27.—Joe Cook who can do everything but imitate four Hawaiians, has nothing on Mildred (call me Babe) Didrikson, an 18-year-old Amazon from Dallas, Texas. In fact, after watching Babe's amazing performance in the National Women's Track and Field Championships on Saturday and talking with her, we are inclined to believe the Texas girl could not only imitate four Hawaiians but five, as well. And maybe six.

Babe, who hasn't even so much as seen a track meet two years ago, completed in three events (all the law allowed) and the best she could do was to break world's records in two of them and thoroughly outdistance her field in the other. She still was puffing from running the 80-meter hurdles in the amazing time of 12 flat when we decided to ask her a few questions. Between puffs we learned that:

She was thoroughly disappointed with her time of 12 seconds; thought it "pretty slow." She never saw a hurdle until two months ago when she ran against a field of men and won in a walk. Saturday marked her third appearance in a hurdle race.

She likes all sports and is good at all of them. That goes for polo, ping-pong, baseball, boxing, swimming, squash rackets and what have you. Is particularly good at basketball, being forward of the team that holds the national championship.

Swell boxer. She mixed it up with W. L. (Young) Stribling's brother, Herbert, a fairish welterweight, and "smacked him a sweet one on the nose." Babe trains the year around by moving from one sport to another.

She has a magnificent scorn for boys and thinks they are "afraid" of her. Stands five feet six and one-half inches and weighs 138 in her birthday clothes. She knows she is not pretty but considers herself graceful. She's right on both points. Of Norwegian parentage she works in a Dallas insurance office as an expert reader.

The 1931 meet, by the way, was miserably handled. This was probably due to the fact that Pershing Field in Jersey City is a sprawling, unattractive park and fit for nothing more important than a grammar school meet. The officials apparently had made little or no provisions to handle the crowds, with the result that spectators wandered over the track and infield at will. It was this haphazard state of affairs that led to one of the spectators being hit and badly injured by a discus thrown by Stella Walsh, the Cleveland sprint star.

ASK TO INCREASE SUPPLY OF MONEY

Austin, Tex., July 27.—(U.P.)—A resolution was offered in the Texas house of representatives today asking President Hoover to call a special session of congress to increase the supply of money in circulation.

The resolution, drafted by Reps. T. H. McGregor of Austin and Sam A. Bryant of Memphis, declared congress has delegated the power to regulate the supply of money to "selfish and private corporations, making them absolute dictators of all business and finance in the whole country."

Mr. Hoover was asked to call the special session that congress "may again assume the power, duty and responsibility of controlling the volume and value of money."

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORY OF TODAY

All the scientific knowledge of the University of Minnesota will be commandeered to solve the lake region's latest phenomena. After dyed in the wool jack pine veterans failed to advance any semblance of accuracy in determining the strange "thing" (for it cannot be described any more clearly) Senator Hilding Swanson who created a puzzling curiosity among townites at noon today with his find, will send the specimen to the University of Minnesota to gain the opinion of piscatorial specialists.

"I'd say without scientific knowledge of the subject that it is a form of jelly fish," Swanson opined to a group of onlookers.

Mr. Swanson recovered the jelly like masses from Rice Lake near his cottage at Pine Shores.

One other theory advanced is that the solid substance is the sperm of fish. Weeds have grown through the mass.

Serving will begin at 5:30 o'clock.

John R. Voorhis, Grand Sachem of Tammany, is 102 Years Old Today

New York, July 27.—(U.P.)—John R. Voorhis, grand sachem of Tammany Hall, opened the meeting of the board of elections today by cutting a big cake in honor of his 102nd birthday.

As he prepared to eat the cake, he saw his private physician eyeing him intently and pushed it aside with the remark, "Anyone that deserves a piece of cake is welcome to it."

There was a rush for the cake in which all but Voorhis took part.

PLAY 2ND GAME TO BREAK TIE TONIGHT

SOUTHEAST AND Y. M. C. A. TO CLASH; OUTCOME IMPORTANT IN LEAGUE STANDINGS

Southeast and Y. M. C. A. will clash again tonight in a second attempt to break a tie game.

The last two games these teams have played ended in tie games. Southeast is fast developing into a fast team and in the last two games have shown signs of having a good ball team, having defeated Northeast 9-5 in a practice game and came near defeating the "Y" last Friday. Errors in the sixth inning enabled the "Y" to tie the count at 5-all.

Whitlock, who held the "Y" to one hit in the four innings he pitched against the "Y" last week, will probably be on the mound for Southeast, while Gabiou or Peterson will pitch for the "Y."

No game is scheduled for tomorrow night as yet as the second half schedule depends on the outcome on the game tonight.

Each team must have a complete roster of their fifteen players turned into the league head before the starting of the second half.

The Northeast roster is as follows: P. Bedal, Montgomery, Rasch, Gus Elling, J. Richmond, F. Jarboe, J. Swanson, J. Stanley, R. Hegstad, A. Holman, Skiba, F. Elling, A. Stanley, Wayne, C. Miller.

BRAINERD SWAMPED IN BALL GAME, 22 TO 4

A pickup Brainerd baseball team took a severe trouncing at the hands of Detroit Lakes at the latter's diamond, losing by the one sided count of 22 to 4.

The victors pounded the offerings of three hurlers for twenty blows, including two home runs.

The score:

	R.	H.	E.
Brainerd	100	020	001
Detroit Lakes	230	126	08x

Batteries—Franks, Jarbo, Nutting and Raiford, Ringer; Johnson and Heiberg, Dekko.

Leavened Bread Long in Use

The art of leavening bread was known to the early Egyptians, and was handed down to us by way of the Greeks and Romans.

MILDRED DIDRIKSON BREAKS TWO WORLD RECORDS AT MEET

THOROUGHLY OUT - DISTANCES FIELD IN 3RD EVENT OF NEW YORK TRACK MEET

HAS MAGNIFICENT SCORN FOR BOYS, THINKS THEY ARE "AFRAID" OF HER

By HENRY McLEMORE
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 27.—Joe Cook who can do everything but imitate four Hawaiians, has nothing on Mildred (call me Babe) Didrikson, an 18-year-old Amazon from Dallas, Texas. In fact, after watching Babe's amazing performance in the National Women's Track and Field Championships on Saturday and talking with her, we are inclined to believe the Texas girl could not only imitate four Hawaiians but five, as well. And maybe six.

Babe, who hadn't even so much as seen a track meet two years ago, competed in three events (all the law allows) and the best she could do was to break world's records in two of them and thoroughly outdistance her field in the other. She still was puffing from running the 80-meter hurdles in the amazing time of 12 flat when we decided to ask her a few questions. Between puffs we learned that:

She was thoroughly disappointed with her time of 12 seconds; thought it "pretty slow." She never saw a hurdle until two months ago when she ran against a field of men and won in a walk. Saturday marked her third appearance in a hurdle race.

She likes all sports and is good at all of them. That goes for polo, ping-pong, baseball, boxing, swimming, squash rackets and what have you. Is particularly good at basketball, being forward of the team that holds the national championship.

Swell boxer. She mixed it up with W. L. (Young) Stribling's brother, Herbert, a faunch welterweight, and "smacked him a sweet one on the nose." Babe trains the year around by moving from one sport to another.

She has a magnificent scorn for boys and thinks they are "afraid" of her. Stands five feet six and one-half inches and weighs 128 in her birthday clothes. She knows she is not pretty but considers herself graceful. She's right on both points. Of Norwegian parentage she works in a Dallas insurance office as an expert rater.

The 1931 meet, by the way, was miserably handled. This was probably due to the fact that Pershing Field in Jersey City is a sprawling, unattractive park and fit for nothing more important than a grammar school meet. The officials apparently had made little or no provisions to handle the crowds, with the result that spectators wandered over the track and infield at will. It was this haphazard state of affairs that led to one of the spectators being hit and badly injured by a discus thrown by Stella Walsh, the Cleveland sprint star.

Winona Junior Team Beats St. Cloud 23 to 2

Stillwater, Minn., July 27.—(U.P.)—Winona walked away from St. Cloud today in their baseball game in the state championship tournament of American Legion junior teams, 23 to 2.

ASK TO INCREASE SUPPLY OF MONEY

Austin, Tex., July 27.—(U.P.)—A resolution was offered in the Texas house of representatives today asking President Hoover to call a special session of congress to increase the supply of money in circulation.

The resolution, drafted by Reps. T. H. McGregor of Austin and Sam A. Bryant of Memphis, declared congress has delegated the power to regulate the supply of money to "selfish and private corporations, making them absolute dictators of all business and finance in the whole country."

Mr. Hoover was asked to call the special session that congress "may again assume the power, duty and responsibility of controlling the volume and value of money."

rites fixed for THELMA BAPP, 11

Services will be held at the Seventh Day Adventist church, Brainerd, Tuesday at 2 p. m., for Thelma Bapp, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bapp, South Long lake. Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery. The child passed away Sunday at 2 p. m. at the Fairview hospital, Minneapolis.

TWO FLYING CADETS INSTANTLY KILLED

San Antonio, Texas, July 27.—(U.P.)—Two Kelly field army flying cadets were killed instantly today when their plane crashed at Fort Clark, near Bracketville.

The dead: Robert Burke, Dyersburg, Tenn. George M. Grear, Jasper, Ala. The plane was wrecked but did not catch fire. Officers reported the accident here.

BRAINERD'S ODDEST STORY OF TODAY

All the scientific knowledge of the University of Minnesota will be commandeered to solve the lake region's latest phenomena. After dyed in the wool jack pine veterans failed to advance any semblance of accuracy in determining the strange "thing" (for it cannot be described any more clearly) Senator Hilding Swanson who created a puzzling curiosity among townites at noon today with his find, will send the specimen to the University of Minnesota to gain the opinion of piscatorial specialists.

"I'd say without scientific knowledge of the subject that it is a form of jelly fish," Swanson opined to a group of onlookers. Mr. Swanson recovered the jelly like masses from Rice Lake near his cottage at Pine Shores.

One other theory advanced is that the solid substance is the sperm of fish. Weeds have grown through the mass.

205TH INFANTRY BAND TO PLAY HERE

New Ulm Organization From Camp Ripley to Play at Gregory Park 8 P. M. Tomorrow

Brainerd is to be given another concert by a military band.

Tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock the 205th Infantry Band of New Ulm will play a concert at Gregory Park. A large attendance is expected as the preceding military bands of the artillery corps stirred the musical tastes of Brainerd and lake country people. Mayor Harry Creger has attended to all arrangements for the concert and conferred with Colonel Ivan Bowen of the camp and his aides in regard to the concert tomorrow night.

BRAINERD COUNTRY CLUB DINES TUESDAY

Serving Committee Prepares Excellent Menu, Serving Starts 5:30 P. M.

The ladies of the Brainerd Country club will serve their regular dinner Tuesday evening. The serving committee is Mrs. Ernest Butler, chairman, Mrs. Clem Ryan, Mrs. Ray Cleary, Mrs. Howard Dougherty, Mrs. M. P. Gerber, Mrs. Melville Bredenberg, Mrs. Hector Hoenig, Mrs. J. S. Lewis and Mrs. Clyde Parker. The menu will consist of creamed chicken and mushrooms on baking powder biscuits, clover leaf rolls, cabbage salad, beet pickles, iced tea and coffee, pineapple sherbet and cake.

Serving will begin at 5:30 o'clock.

John R. Voorhis, Grand Sachem of Tammany, is 102 Years Old Today

New York, July 27.—(U.P.)—John R. Voorhis, grand sachem of Tammany Hall, opened the meeting of the board of elections today by cutting a big cake in honor of his 102nd birthday.

As he prepared to eat the cake, he saw his private physician eyeing him intently and pushed it aside with the remark, "Anyone that deserves a piece of cake is welcome to it."

There was a rush for the cake in which all but Voorhis took part.

PLAY 2ND GAME TO BREAK TIE TONIGHT

SOUTHEAST AND Y. M. C. A. TO CLASH; OUTCOME IMPORTANT IN LEAGUE STANDINGS

Southeast and Y. M. C. A. will clash again tonight in a second attempt to break a tie game.

The last two games these teams have played ended in tie games. Southeast is fast developing into a fast team and in the last two games have shown signs of having a good ball team, having defeated Northeast 9-5 in a practice game and came near defeating the "Y" last Friday. Errors in the sixth inning enabled the "Y" to tie the count at 5-all.

Whitlock, who held the "Y" to one hit in the four innings he pitched against the "Y" last week, will probably be on the mound for Southeast, while Gabiou or Peterson will pitch for the "Y."

No game is scheduled for tomorrow night as yet as the second half schedule depends on the outcome on the game tonight.

Each team must have a complete roster of their fifteen players turned into the league head before the starting of the second half.

The Northeast roster is as follows: P. Bedal, Montgomery, Rasch, Gus Elling, J. Richmond, F. Jarboe, J. Swanson, J. Stanley, R. Hegstad, A. Holman, Skiba, F. Elling, A. Stanley, Wayne, C. Miller.

MAURICE, IOWA, BANK IS ROBBED

Maurice, Iowa, July 27.—(U.P.)—The Sioux County Savings Bank was robbed today by two bandits who entered the institution about 9:30 a. m., leisurely gathered together $1,500, and escaped in a waiting automobile.

Midyear Sport Standouts

By HARDIN BURNLEY

A GERMAN pugilist who somewhat resembles Dempsey in looks and Tunney in ring technique; a Greek athletic god of those who like the sport of grapple, groan, grunt and grin; a pro golfer who smokes like a chess master while winning championship; a marvelous 3-year-old which makes all turf fanciers think of $20,000; a raceboat savant who taught the U. S. Navy how to sweep the Hudson; the latest California comet in world record dashes; a swimming divinity from the Far West—these are sport world standouts thus far in 1931.

Max Schmeling proved he is of genuine championship class by stopping W.-L. Stribling in the final minute of their 15-round bout. Even his fellow-countrymen were skeptical prior to that clean-cut victory. The German has swung so much fistic favor to his side, that he should be a distinct choice when—and if—he risks the title against Primo Carnera in the indistinct future.

Jim Londos threw Frank Steele in a wrestling epic for the N. Y. Milk Fund last June, but it was so close that many think Steele will end the mighty Greek's reign when they meet again. The challenger has youth and increasing strength on his side. Meanwhile "Jeem"—Max Schmeling proved he is of genuine championship class by

The new U. S. Open winner—Billy Burke (Americanized—glory be!—version of the Lithuanian Burkauskas) is adding to his already large personal following, as is Helene Madison, Seattle's swimming Venus. Frank Wykoff still threatens to do the century in less than 9.5, and Twenty Grand may retire more famous even than Man o'War. As to the Navy's "Ol' Dick" Glendon, his crew's astounding triumph in June's Poughkeepsie regatta furnished sports' biggest surprise thus far this year. From Max to Dick, all mentioned here have contributed much, and will contribute more, to headlines everywhere.

Jim Blakeham's Old Suit Won

By ROSE MEREDITH

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

JIM BLAKEHAM, the most important of all the cowboys at Red Gulf ranch, was getting ready for the dance at the Gulf schoolhouse.

"You look like a blue-eyed baby," offered Frank Perks.

"I am," retorted Jim shortly.

"How about the new school teacher—we can't all dance with her?"

"Why try it, then?" was Jim's reply.

"If you'd stay home once—only once, and give some of us other fellows a chance," complained another young man mournfully.

"Try to keep me home," suggested Jim gaily. And it was that remark that started the thing. One by one his companions left the table and hurried to the bunkhouse.

By the time Jim Blakeham reached his own room, the bunkhouse was empty and his companions were riding off the range, in one swift-moving body.

"Wonder what the hurry is," muttered Jim pulling off his clothes, and five minutes later, after a careful search of the place, he understood.

His best clothes had completely disappeared. If he went to the dance at the schoolhouse, it would have to be in a suit of khaki, clean and cool—but working clothes.

Jim Blakeham was not angry—he knew it was a mischievous trick they had played upon him. But they couldn't keep him home that way—he cared too much about going to see this new school teacher for she bore the same name as a girl he used to know—Millie Gray. If this was his Millie Gray, perhaps he could discover from her own lips why she had never answered the important letter he had written to her.

If it was his Millie Gray, she wouldn't care about his clothes. He got into them, glad that the khaki was clean and that he had a new black tie.

All the windows in the schoolhouse were wide open when Jim arrived, and the sound of fiddles, and the thump of dancing feet, was exhilarating. Outside, in the moonlight, many couples strolled under the cottonwoods, so that when Jim bent his head to enter the schoolhouse door, his appearance was an event. The voices of his friends greeted him, and some one started a little applause. Jim bowed gracefully, and the whole thing was getting along splendidly, when some one exclaimed:

"Look at the school ma'm—she's fainting!"

Jim Blakeham saw big Dick Forest awkwardly supporting a very small figure—there was a cloud of rich red hair tumbling over her shoulder.

"It's Millie—my Millie!" thought Jim as he pushed his way forward. But by the time he reached Dick Forest, the girl had been borne away by maistering women.

The next morning all the men went rushing off to a long day's riding, quite forgetting about the new school teacher. Jim Blakeham himself was the only one who actually had her on his mind that morning as he rode toward Red Gulch post office. He had made up his mind that if Millie Gray appeared cold and indifferent, he would not be the one to try to arouse her interest.

Dreaming thus as his white pony ambled along the trail, Jim suddenly heard a horse's hoofs, and then, turning, saw the girl of his heart riding close behind him. She did not glance up at his face at first. It was only when he whirled his pony out of the trail and gave her a free passage that she looked up gratefully.

"Oh, thank you—I was just a bit afraid of an Indian I met yonder—why, Jim—Jim Blakeham! Is it really you?" She was radiant with delight, and Jim rode up to her, hat in hand.

"I didn't believe you'd remember me, Millie," he said, contentedly.

"Remember you? How ridiculous!" She blushed warmly, but her blue eyes were dancing with pure delight. "Just imagine, seeing you here!"

"Imagine meeting the only girl I ever loved out here in my loneliness," muttered Jim in a low, tense tone.

For a moment the girl stared at him unbelievably, then the loveliest look came into her eyes, and she smiled happily. "Oh, Jim Blakeham, do you really mean that?" she whispered softly.

"Ah, Millie Gray, Millie Gray, my heart has ached for you ever since I left Leadenville—I mailed you a letter, and you never answered it, and so I just pulled stakes and came out here—Is it true—that you care?"

He was holding her hands now, and his hungry eyes asked questions.

Millie hung her head. Presently she nodded gently, and added so that only his ear heard in that vast prairie. "Would I be here today, Jim, if I did not? Last spring I read in the paper something about you and the ranch here—and that night I applied for the office of school teacher! I never received your letter—and last night when I saw you—I fainted!"

"Surely it is quite all right now, sweetheart!" asked Jim as he took her into his arms.

TWELVE INCHES OFF FOR STREET SKIRT

Gradual Drop Is Indicated for Other Occasions.

New York signposts indicate, among other things, that the waistline will stay where nature intended it should be, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times.

Skirts—daytime skirts—so the signs show, are remaining in the vicinity of the knee rather than the ankle.

"Twelve inches off" is the rule for street wear; for afternoon they are lowered from two to four inches. In the evening they reach ankle-length, and for very formal functions sweep into trains.

The "pencil silhouette" characterizes the autumn mode. It is accentuated by diagonal lines and skirts that flare but slightly (pleats, we hear, are to make way for flares). Many couturiers are using one-sided movements in their fall models. The twirl, or wrap-around diagonal cut, is to be used for sports as well as town skirts. Coat dresses will also contribute largely to the sleek contour of the figure.

Sleeves are assuming greater importance in the general design of dresses and coats. Attention is centered on them where the lines of the garment are simple and severe. They are wider, trimmed at the elbow, and decorated with touches of fur. The long sleeve for the evening dress is one of the new style notes.

Ensembles are to follow the general tendency that unites two colors in one costume. Advance models mark a reversal of the old order of wearing a dark coat with a light dress.

Woolen dresses, so the authorities say, have not been as much talked about in years as they are for autumn and winter wear. Black, sedate and conventional, is assured of its usual role of a safe stand-by. Browns, greens, blues, reds and a new dark beige that has a sun-baked look promise to be color leaders. Evening gowns will probably be mostly white and of velvet and satin for dressy occasions. The pastels, too, will hold their own, with delicate pink taking a prominent place. For more serious moods navy, wine and brown will be used.

Evening gowns will probably be mostly white and of velvet and satin for dressy occasions. The pastels, too, will hold their own, with delicate pink taking a prominent place. For more serious moods navy, wine and brown will be used.

Ensembles are to follow the general tendency that unites two colors in one costume. Advance models mark a reversal of the old order of wearing a dark coat with a light dress.

Woolen dresses, so the authorities say, have not been as much talked about in years as they are for autumn and winter wear. Black, sedate and conventional, is assured of its usual role of a safe stand-by. Browns, greens, blues, reds and a new dark beige that has a sun-baked look promise to be color leaders. RAIL AGENTS TALK BETTER BUSINESS

Great Interest Evidenced by 100 Percent Meeting of N. P. M. and I. Agents

IDEAS ARE EXCHANGED

Will Seek to Convince Business Men Value of Cycle of Exchange in Business

The local agents of the Second District of the Lake Superior Division of the Northern Pacific Railway, together with the agents of the Minnesota and International Railway, held what is called a "Sales Meeting" in Brainerd on Sunday, that being the only day when they could get away from their regular work.

The great interest in this meeting was evidenced by a 100 per cent attendance.

In addition to the agents of both companies above mentioned, the following representing the Northern Pacific and Minnesota and International were present:

G. H. Jacobus, superintendent, Duluth; J. P. Roddy, A. G. F. & P. A., Duluth; N. D. Harding, Trav. Frt. & Pass. Agt., Duluth; Harold R. White, City Frt. Agt., Duluth; Elmer S. Hard, City Frt. & Pass. Agt., Superior; C. P. O'Donnell, City Pass. Agt., Duluth; J. W. Smith, roadmaster, Deerwood; G. A. Mitchell, Asst. Gen. Frt. Agt., St. Paul; V. F. Harvey, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., St. Paul; J. J. O'Connor, Gen. Agt. Frt. Dept., St. Paul; Ober Kobbe, Trav. Frt. Agt., St. Paul; H. E. Bergstrom, shop supt., Brainerd; L. E. Harris Div. Acct., Brainerd; T. B. Nelson, agent, Brainerd; Milo Rose, Hugo Sundberg and other members of the Brainerd Booster club; H. W. Peterson, president of the Booster club of Staples; W. H. Gemmell, president, Minnesota and Int'l. Ry., Brainerd; F. E. Stout, auditor, Brainerd; E. W. Englund, traffic clerk, Brainerd; Walter Fall, chief clerk and Frt. Claim Clerk, auditor's office, Brainerd; G. H. Warner, trainmaster, Bemidji; J. I. Davidson, Engr. of Mice, Bemidji; H. P. Larson, Sec. Foreman, Kellihiser.

The meeting opened at 11 a. m. and continued in session until 12:30, when an adjournment was taken to the Ransford hotel, where a fine luncheon for some 75 persons was served. After luncheon the meeting reopened and continued until 5 p. m.

The business situation from the railroad standpoint was thoroughly discussed and suggestions made as to what railroad men can and should do and will do to improve the service and better accommodate their patrons. It was pointed out that agents should have little difficulty in convincing business men in their towns, who largely depend on the support of railway employees for the business they do, that the railroads can furnish passenger and freight service that is adequate to take care of all needs. The varied and diversified kinds of competition that railway agents now have to contend with were particularly stressed, and suggestions made as to what measures should be taken to hold the business to the railroad.

NORTH NOKAY LAKE

Miss Ruth Marsh of Deerwood has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Leonard Olson this week.

Leonard Olson had the misfortune to injure his hands quite severely recently. His brother, Selmar Olson, and Alan Harrington of Bay Lake have been helping him.

District No. 47 have decided to transport to the Riverton school again this year. Leon Bock secured the contract to haul the children his being the only bid submitted. He agreed to purchase a new chassis and bus to meet the state requirements. Mr. Bock and family are in Indiana at present but expect to be home in three weeks or so. Tom Mulholland went to Wadena Tuesday to try out a new bus for Mr. Bock.

At the annual meeting Tuesday Clarence Norgard was reelected clerk. A tax levy of $1200 was voted to meet the transporting and other expenses of conducting the school business.

Miss Marion Peterson has been spending a few days at the home of her uncle, Carney Peterson in Brainerd.

Visitors at Clarence Norgard's Wednesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kunde, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Olson and little son, Ole Norgard and Martin Olson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson and daughter Miss Minnie visited friends in North Dakota recently.

MANY TO BID FOR SCHOOL WORK

32 General Contractors, 53 Section Work, Apply for Plans and Specifications

OPEN BIDS TOMORROW 2 P. M.

School Board Adjourns to High School Auditorium, Tabulating Bids That Hour

Local contractors are again reminded that their bids for construction and other work at the new junior high school must be filed with the secretary of the board of education, Louis F. Hohman, general office at the high school, by 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The plan of the school board is that at the close of the meeting tonight the board will adjourn to 2 p. m. Tuesday, July 28, at the auditorium in the high school at which time bids will be opened and tabulated and gotten in shape for the board to take action at the evening meeting.

Late last week 32 general contractors had taken out plans and specifications for the study of the proposed contract, and 53 mechanical sets had been taken out. If all of these people put in bids, and sub-contractors that are interested, also put in an appearance, there will be an attendance of over 250 at the 2 p. m. session of the school board tomorrow afternoon.

MRS. TOWLE DIES ON WEST COAST

Mrs. Frank G. Hall at Bedside of Mother When She Passed Away in Los Angeles

BURIAL AT MINNEAPOLIS

Had Visited in Brainerd Several Times; Leaves Three Sons and Four Daughters

Mrs. Frank G. Hall has wired the news to Brainerd relatives of the death of her mother, Mrs. E. L. Towle, Sunday afternoon at Los Angeles at the age of 72 years after several months illness.

Mrs. Hall and other daughters were at the bedside when Mrs. Towle passed away. The body will be taken to Minneapolis, her home town for burial.

Mrs. Towle has visited Brainerd on several occasions. She was a guest for six months at the Hall residence, 209 North 4th street, two years ago.

Surviving are four daughters and three sons: Mrs. Hall, Brainerd; Mrs. Douglas Donaldson, Mrs. Skork, Los Angeles; Mrs. Harry Ingraham, Granger, Wash.; Robert E. Towle, Helena, Mont.; Morton, Allentown, Pa.; Stanley, Minneapolis.

Her last home was with Mrs. Donaldson.

MINNESOTA GIVEN NEW U. S. HIGHWAY, NO. 271; U. S. NO. 55 EXTENDED

One new route, U. S. highway No. 271, from Little Falls to Bemidji, has been added to the list of U. S. highways in Minnesota. The new U. S. route will run over trunk highway No. 27 from Little Falls to Brainerd, trunk highway No. 19 from Brainerd via Walker to Cass Lake, and trunk highway eight from Cass Lake to Bemidji. C. M. Babcock, commissioner of highways has received official notice of the designation of the route, and will have the standard markers put up as soon as they can be made.

The new U. S. route will be a connecting link between other highways previously marked with U. S. numbers, starting from U. S. 10N at Little Falls, crossing U. S. 210 at Brainerd, following U. S. No. 2 from Cass Lake to Bemidji, where it connects with U. S. No. 71.

U. S. 55, which now runs from Minneapolis, Minn., to Dubuque, Iowa, has been extended to Davenport, Iowa. The Minnesota portion of this route runs over trunk highway 50 from Minneapolis to Cannon Falls, and trunk highway 20 from Cannon Falls to the Iowa line.

U. S. numbered highways have no different status from other trunk highways, but only carry the U. S. numbers for the convenience of interstate traffic. The numbering follows a carefully worked out plan. All the main interstate routes have numbers under 100. East and west routes have even numbers starting with No. 2 near the Canadian boundary, while the main transcontinental routes are multiples of ten. North and south routes have odd numbers, starting with No. 1 along the Atlantic coast. Shorter routes, connecting other U. S. routes within one state or nearby points, have numbers of three digits. Part of this number indicates the main route connection, for example, U. S. 271 connects with U. S. 71 at Bemidji.

CONGRESSMEN TO VISIT CAMP RIPLEY

Representatives Clague, Andresen, Knutson, With Sen. Schall at Camp Ripley, July 31

Representatives of the state of Minnesota in the legislative halls at Washington, D. C., will visit Camp Ripley near Brainerd on July 31, according to announcements made today by Colonel Ivan Bowen, regimental commander.

Representative Frank Clague of Redwood Falls, has already signified his intention of visiting the camp on that date and assurances have been received from Senator Thomas D. Schall, Representative August H. Andresen of Red Wing and Harold Knutson of St. Cloud, that they will in all probability be visitors at Camp Ripley on that date.

Plans are being made to decorate the personnel of the regiment on that day. Good conduct medals will be awarded during the regimental parade, to men serving three years, with an attendance of over 90 per cent at armory drills and no court martial or other marks of demerit against them. The winners of the regimental team shoot will also receive their award on this date, as well as the winners of the Dahl trophy for sanitation, the kitchen trophy and the Osman Temple trophy awarded for general efficiency.

Company "M" of Crookston returned to Camp Ripley late last night, after having been guests of General Ellard A. Walsh, the adjutant general, for having compiled the highest attendance at armory drills for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1931.

The entertainment provided for them included the baseball game between St. Paul and Minneapolis at Lexington Park, a dinner at the Hotel Lowry followed by entertainers and a sightseeing tour in the afternoon.

The unit is under command of Captain Mickle Bang.

HOPE FOR RAINS TO SAVE CROPS

Drought Hits Corn and Potatoes Hard; Without Rains Short Crop Forecast

With no letup of heat as the temperature threatened this afternoon to surmount that of 99 degrees Saturday and 98 Sunday, farmers looked anxiously towards the sky for a sign of clouds that might bring rain and save crops from the drought.

Already the continued dry spell has hurt crops in Crow Wing county. Corn leaves are starting to roll up. Potato leaves are withering.

Even with rains the potatoes will be handicapped and will turn knobby, farmers reported. The second crop of hay is also affected.

No More Horse - Laughs

REMEMBER what our school books taught us about the lives of inventors who lived many years ago? How often we used to read, "He went on with his experiments in spite of the laughter of his friends, and the ridicule of his neighbors."

How different is the modern state of mind! This age is remarkable for its keen awareness of progress . . . the eager willingness of most of us to accept new things, and better ways. The skeptical person is the exception—expectancy is the rule. If we read about an invention that will wash the middle of our backs, we say, "Fair enough; tomorrow there will be an automatic way to keep our noses powdered."

New things and better ways are announced regularly in this paper . . . in the advertisements. Every day you may be expecting something that will make your life easier, pleasanter, more healthful. Possibly a new electrical contrivance, or a car that's easier to drive, or a new idea in breakfast foods. Follow the advertising columns . . . and sooner or later you'll get the good news. People who make it a point to know what's going on read the advertisements every day.

The Northern Pacific have recently been conducting similar meetings elsewhere in Minnesota and North Dakota and the agents attending them are returning to their stations much benefited and stimulated by the encouraging and instructive advice and new ideas they receive from exchanging views with fellow agents, and from the encouragement given them by the officials who pass on to them the benefit of their experience, and their knowledge of railroad conditions, not only local, but statewide and nationwide.

NORTH NOKAY LAKE

Miss Ruth Marsh of Deerwood has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Leonard Olson this week.

Leonard Olson had the misfortune to injure his hands quite severely recently. His brother, Selmar Olson, and Alan Harrington of Bay Lake have been helping him.

District No. 47 have decided to transport to the Riverton school again this year. Leon Bock secured the contract to haul the children his being the only bid submitted. He agreed to purchase a new chassis and bus to meet the state requirements. Mr. Bock and family are in Indiana at present but expect to be home in three weeks or so. Tom Mulholland went to Wadena Tuesday to try out a new bus for Mr. Bock.

At the annual meeting Tuesday Clarence Norgard was reelected clerk. A tax levy of $1200 was voted to meet the transporting and other expenses of conducting the school business.

Miss Marion Peterson has been spending a few days at the home of her uncle, Carney Peterson in Brainerd.

Visitors at Clarence Norgard's Wednesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kunde, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Olson and little son, Ole Norgard and Martin Olson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Nelson and daughter Miss Minnie visited friends in North Dakota recently.

MANY TO BID FOR SCHOOL WORK

32 General Contractors, 53 Section Work, Apply for Plans and Specifications

OPEN BIDS TOMORROW 2 P. M.

School Board Adjourns to High School Auditorium, Tabulating Bids That Hour

Local contractors are again reminded that their bids for construction and other work at the new junior high school must be filed with the secretary of the board of education, Louis F. Hohman, general office at the high school, by 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The plan of the school board is that at the close of the meeting tonight the board will adjourn to 2 p. m. Tuesday, July 28, at the auditorium in the high school at which time bids will be opened and tabulated and gotten in shape for the board to take action at the evening meeting.

Late last week 32 general contractors had taken out plans and specifications for the study of the proposed contract, and 53 mechanical sets had been taken out. If all of these people put in bids, and sub-contractors that are interested, also put in an appearance, there will be an attendance of over 250 at the 2 p. m. session of the school board tomorrow afternoon.

STORM, 37 YEARS HERE, IS STRICKEN

Retired N. P. Machinist Victim of Several Months Illness; Funeral Tomorrow

Funeral arrangements were completed today for William I. Storm, 76 year old retired N. P. machinist, who passed away Sunday at 5:30 a. m. at his home, 617 North 7th street, after several months illness.

Rev. N. P. Olmsted will conduct the services tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. at the home. Interment will be at Evergreen cemetery. The family requests no flowers be sent.

Mr. Storm was widely known in this city through 37 years of residence here. He is survived by two daughters, Mary and Evelyn Storm, both of Brainerd. His wife predeceased him December 25, 1923. Mr. Storm was born in New York state, November 11, 1855.

MRS. TOWLE DIES ON WEST COAST

Mrs. Frank G. Hall at Bedside of Mother When She Passed Away in Los Angeles

BURIAL AT MINNEAPOLIS

Had Visited in Brainerd Several Times; Leaves Three Sons and Four Daughters

Mrs. Frank G. Hall has wired the news to Brainerd relatives of the death of her mother, Mrs. E. L. Towle, Sunday afternoon at Los Angeles at the age of 72 years after several months illness.

Mrs. Hall and other daughters were at the bedside when Mrs. Towle passed away. The body will be taken to Minneapolis, her home town for burial.

Mrs. Towle has visited Brainerd on several occasions. She was a guest for six months at the Hall residence, 209 North 4th street, two years ago.

Surviving are four daughters and three sons: Mrs. Hall, Brainerd; Mrs. Douglas Donaldson, Mrs. Storck, Los Angeles; Mrs. Harry Ingraham, Granger, Wash.; Robert E. Towle, Helena, Mont.; Morton, Allentown, Pa.; Stanley, Minneapolis.

Her last home was with Mrs. Donaldson.

MINNESOTA GIVEN NEW U. S. HIGHWAY, NO. 271; U. S. NO. 55 EXTENDED

One new route, U. S. highway No. 271, from Little Falls to Bemidji, has been added to the list of U. S. highways in Minnesota. The new U. S. route will run over trunk highway No. 27 from Little Falls to Brainerd, trunk highway No. 19 from Brainerd via Walker to Cass Lake and trunk highway eight from Cass Lake to Bemidji. C. M. Babcock, commissioner of highways has received official notice of the designation of the route, and will have the standard markers put up as soon as they can be made.

The new U. S. route will be a connecting link between other highways previously marked with U. S. numbers, starting from U. S. 10N at Little Falls, crossing U. S. 210 at Brainerd, following U. S. No. 2 from Cass Lake to Bemidji, where it connects with U. S. No. 71.

U. S. 55, which now runs from Minneapolis, Minn., to Dubuque, Iowa, has been extended to Davenport, Iowa. The Minnesota portion of this route runs over trunk highway 50 from Minneapolis to Cannon Falls, and trunk highway 20 from Cannon Falls to the Iowa line.

U. S. numbered highways have no different status from other trunk highways, but only carry the U. S. numbers for the convenience of interstate traffic. The numbering follows a carefully worked out plan. All the main interstate routes have numbers under 100. East and west routes have even numbers starting with No. 2 near the Canadian boundary, while the main transcontinental routes are multiples of ten. North and south routes have odd numbers, starting with No. 1 along the Atlantic coast. Shorter routes, connecting other U. S. routes within one state or nearby points, have numbers of three digits. Part of this number indicates the main route connection, for example, U. S. 271 connects with U. S. 71 at Bemidji.

Cong. Knutson Here Tomorrow

Congressman Harold Knutson of this district, according to a decision just made because of the many constituents who wish to see him, will be in Brainerd at the Ransford hotel tomorrow afternoon to meet and confer with him.

CONGRESSMEN TO VISIT CAMP RIPLEY

Representatives Clague, Andresen, Knutson, With Sen. Schall at Camp Ripley, July 31

Representatives of the state of Minnesota in the legislative halls at Washington, D. C., will visit Camp Ripley near Brainerd on July 31, according to announcements made today by Colonel Ivan Bowen, regimental commander.

Representative Frank Clague of Redwood Falls, has already signified his intention of visiting the camp on that date and assurances have been received from Senator Thomas D. Schall, Representative August H. Andresen of Red Wing and Harold Knutson of St. Cloud, that they will in all probability be visitors at Camp Ripley on that date.

Plans are being made to decorate the personnel of the regiment on that day. Good conduct medals will be awarded during the regimental parade, to men serving three years, with an attendance of over 90 per cent at armory drills and no court martial or other marks of demerit against them. The winners of the regimental team shoot will also receive their award on this date, as well as the winners of the Dahl trophy for sanitation, the kitchen trophy and the Osman Temple trophy awarded for general efficiency.

Company "M" of Crookston returned to Camp Ripley late last night, after having been guests of General Ellard A. Walsh, the adjutant general, for having compiled the highest attendance at armory drills for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1931.

The entertainment provided for them included the baseball game between St. Paul and Minneapolis at Lexington Park, a dinner at the Hotel Lowry followed by entertainers and a sightseeing tour in the afternoon.

The unit is under command of Captain Mickle Bang.

HOPE FOR RAINS TO SAVE CROPS

Drought Hits Corn and Potatoes Hard; Without Rains Short Crop Forecast

With no letup of heat as the temperature threatened this afternoon to surmount that of 99 degrees Saturday and 98 Sunday, farmers looked anxiously towards the sky for a sign of clouds that might ring rain and save crops from the drought.

Already the continued dry spell has hurt crops in Crow Wing county. Corn leaves are starting to roll up. Potato leaves are withering.

Even with rains the potatoes will be handicapped and will turn knobby, farmers reported. The second crop of hay is also affected.

Gov. Olson Denies Reports About Replacing Austin

St. Paul, July 27.—(UP)—Governor Floyd B. Olson today denied reports that H. W. Austin, state purchasing commissioner, is to be replaced on the Big Three. Austin was to have resigned, effective September 1. Austin declared today that he had neither resigned nor contemplated doing so.

Yesterday it was just an old suit, soaked and torn. Today, back from the Select Dry Cleaners, it is radiantly fresh and new. Phone in your order and our driver will stop at your door.

UNION SUNDAY SCHOOLS TO MEET

Community Church at Nisswa to be Scene Sunday of All Day Program

A group of Union Sunday schools will gather at the Nisswa Community church Sunday, August 2, for an all day rally.

The program will begin at 10:30 a. m. with a song service, and the reading of the Sunday school lesson by D. C. Henderson. Friends of Mrs. W. J. Lowrie will be delighted to hear that she has consented to give the morning message.

Beginning again at 1:30 p. m. each school represented will have a part in the afternoon program. There will also be special musical numbers and a short address by local workers.

W. J. Smith, missionary of the American Sunday school Union urges every one to come and get a vision of rural Sunday school work.

CHAPTER I.

MARY LOU THURSTON, walking along Shore Road on a bright Autumn morning, gazed wistfully across the Narrows and at Quarantine, where a great ocean liner had just come to anchor. The water was sparkling blue and the sky was a great arch of azure. Fussy little tugs plodded along, a sea breeze swept bright color into Mary Lou's round cheeks, an airplane droned overhead importantly.

"Mary Lou!" Mary Lou tugged her giddy little beret over one eye and turned to behold her young cousin and charge, Billy Sanderson, leaping up and down on his 6-year-old legs, plumed to earth only by the string of the red paper kite he held in his fat hand.

"What is it, Billy?" "Jever go up in an airplane, Mary Lou? What makes airplanes stay up? Kin I go up in an airplane, Mary Lou?" inquired Billy, all on a breath.

"No," said Mary Lou, regretfully, "no, Billy, I've never been up in an airplane. They stay up because—" Here Mary Lou, floundering in the sea of her own scanty knowledge, ended firmly, "because of the engine..."

"Autos have engines... they stay down," remarked Billy, helpfully.

"Look," cried Mary Lou, "at the big boat." While Billy looked and his 20-year-old cousin sighed with relief, the airplane vanished into the horizon, and Billy began formulating other questions, relative to boats, in his busy mind.

Mary Lou sat down on a green and white bench where the drive curved to a wide look-out, topped by a flagpole circled with red Autumn flowers.

"Stay right here, Billy Sanderson," she commanded, an anxious eye on the cars sweeping up and down the road.

A Dreamer.

While Billy clambered over the seats and fell into the flower bed, clutching his kite, Mary Lou looked over the water and dreamed.

She was always dreaming. She was round and delectable, pretty and vital. She had red-gold hair and eyes as blue as the water flowing past the sea wall. She had a pert nose and a sweet, gallant, red mouth and the most charming hands and feet in the world. Also, she was slender where slenderness is demanded and curved where curves are necessary for beauty. Small as a watch charm, lively as a cricket, fresh as a budding rose and dreaming as a May night... this was Mary Lou Thurston... sitting on a green and white bench on Brooklyn's Shore Road—once known as Millionaires' Row—looking at a station ocean liner and wishing herself in Persia or Peru, Afghanistan, India, England—

Not that Mary Lou was unhappy. She was too healthy for unhappiness, too sweet for discontent. But she was as vitally restless as a puppy tugging at his leash. And she was a dreamer born, a weaver of enchanting fairy tales and legends, with the innocent egotism of youth. She read herself into the pages of every book, she saw herself as the heroine of every play she went to. She was always imagining herself in the most amazing, the most enchanting situations.

The side streets off Shore Road are a hodge-podge of architectural "periods"—Civil War and General Grant, Tweed Ring and strictly "modernistic." Rows of red brick houses, each the twin of its neighbor, run along only to be brought up short by a great, sprawling, bay-windowed frame house, built for space and comfort, sitting back in its own flower garden with perhaps a little vegetable patch added. Now and then, among more pretentious pseudo-Spanish dwellings of cement and stucco and almost-wrought-iron balconies, one sees a small frame dwelling of an earlier day, white painted, green shuttered, demure and lovely.

In such a house Mary Lou Thurston lived with her young aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Sanderson, and their extremely lively youngster, Billy. Mary Lou Thurston was that fast vanishing American, the "home" girl. Once she had had the most charming and delightful parents imaginable, young and careless, happy hearted and improvident. Her father had been a painter—not a very good painter, but a very happy one.

On a tiny income he and his beautiful young wife and Mary Lou had traveled almost all over the world. Then they had come home and there had been an epidemic and presently there was only Mary Lou left to remember. So, at 15, she had come to live with her mother's brother and his wife. And as Billy was a baby and as Mrs. Sanderson had wished to continue with her excellent "job" as secretary to a publisher, Mary Lou had fitted in, a valuable addition to the little household.

While Billy fell into the flower bed clutching his kite, Mary Lou looked over the water and dreamed.

It was Mary Lou who looked after Billy, who kept the little white and green house as shining as a new pin, who wandered along Third Avenue with a basket on her arm, remembering the Italian of her childhood, to the delight of the fruiterers, laughing with them, asking politely after the health of their families, pinching lettuce heads, weighing oranges and doing a shrewd bit of bargaining. It was Mary Lou who learned to cook, to put Billy's spinach through a sieve, to provide the Sanderson family with tested recipes from the magazines and to wean them away from cans and delicatessen.

Little Mother.

So the youthful Sandersons went forth to work and Mary Lou stayed at home with Billy. Billy was going to school now, proud as Punch, and Mary Lou had a little more time to herself. But today was Saturday and she and Billy were indulging in their daily airing along the drive. Rain, shine or snow, Billy was bundled up and trotted out for his exercise, like a little racehorse. And he certainly responded to it, being fat, but not too fat, and rosy and almost bursting with energy.

Of course, life wasn't all Billy and spinach, gas stoves and dust mops. Mary Lou had her Sundays and she was free many evenings. Generally, however, she was to be found with her cunning nose stuck in a book. She had many friends of her own age and sex. All the girls she knew went to business and although she saw them occasionally they seemed somehow to live in another world. Her best friend—But at this juncture he arrived, a slim, spare young man with a freckled face and hair much redder than her own.

"Hello, Mary Lou—hello, Billy—gosh, what a tummy! You'll eat yourself into the grave, my lad look out... over you'll go and the kite with you."

A Real Pal.

Larry Mitchell, 26, very inquiring reporter on the Daily Star, plucked Billy from the back of a bench and set him down, tweaked Mary Lou's beret completely over that bright eye and sat himself beside her.

"What, no greetings?" he inquired. "Of course. What are you doing here this time of day?" asked Mary Lou severely, but her eyes danced. She was very glad to see him. She always was.

"Looking for a murder," was his morbid reply. "Sent over here to scare up a little news. Isn't any. Thought I'd find you here."

Mary Lou had known Larry for three of the five years she had lived with the Sandersons. She had seen him on an average of four times a week ever since. For Larry, dashing out of the Middle Western town which had given him birth to challenge New York with his enthusiasm, his vitality and his typewriter—to say nothing of his insatiable curiosity—was much concerned about Mary Lou's education. Oh, not her book learning—she had enough of that—too much, he thought privately—come at in odd and devious ways—but her education in practical sophistication. He thought her too much the dreamer for this world. He took her on many little jaunts, inexpensive and innocently gay. They went evenings to funny little Italian places in New York and now and then, when Larry was very "flush," they danced on the evening. He came daytimes, too, to walk along the sea wall with Mary Lou and Billy, to sit in Fort Hamilton park, and on Autumn Sundays they sometimes went to a polo game at the Fort itself. They went to motion pictures and they went to theaters, the latter excursions generally due to tickets given Larry by the dramatic editor of his paper. They sat on the Sanderson porch when the nights were clear, or, on rainy evenings, inside in the living room, doing crossword puzzles, solving bookish murders, squabbling and laughing like a couple of youngsters.

While Billy fell into the flower bed clutching his kite, Mary Lou looked over the water and dreamed.

WICKERSHAM COMMISSION ADVOCATES NEW PENAL SYSTEM

fires, the use of cruel and brutal measures of punishment, the persistent recurrence of murder within the prison, the frequent atmosphere of hate and bitterness are sufficient evidence."

The commission also studied the 11,000 police jails and village lockups in the nation. Most of them it found "literally a public nuisance" and "unfit for the purpose for which they are designed."

Thousands of these jails were said to be fire traps. Many are without adequate heating, ventilation or plumbing.

"It is common for young and inexperienced prisoners and even children to be thrown into intimate association for days at a time with vicious, depraved and diseased criminals," the commission said.

Only a small proportion of prisoners need actually be kept behind strong bars and high walls, it was held.

A three-fold program for prison education was laid down by the commission:

1. Prevent deterioration, "which is the almost inevitable by-product of confinement. This is to be accomplished by keeping the inmates busy. The day must be filled from morning until night with as much interesting activity in the form of work, play, education and conversation as possible."
2. Break down undesirable habits.
3. Inculcate new habits and interests.

"Parole must be considered the best means yet devised for releasing prisoners from confinement," the commission said. "It affords the safest method of accomplishing the ex-prisoner's readjustment to the community."

The parole systems in Minnesota, New Jersey and New York were commended. The report urged that all states establish full time central boards to handle all cases and supervise prisoners on parole.

Lindberghs Ready for Hop to Orient

Weeks of preparation have brought Colonel Charles E. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh to the point where they think they will hop off on their flight to the Orient very soon. Their ambitious aerial adventure will take them from New York to Tokyo over a route which does not necessitate any dangerous water jumps. Their first stop out of New York will be Ottawa, Canada, thence to Moose Factory, on to Aklayik at the mouth of the Mackenzie River and then to Nome. The next hop will take them across the Bering Sea and down the coast of Kamchatka. From there they will follow the string of small islands south to Nemuro on the northern coast of Yezo, Japan, and then on to Tokyo. The proposed route is outlined above, with a photo of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh at left and their speedy Lockheed Sirius monoplane at right.

CHAPTER I.

MARY LOU THURSTON, walking along Shore Road on a bright Autumn morning, gazed wistfully across the Narrows and at Quarantine, where a great ocean liner had just come to anchor. The water was sparkling blue and the sky was a great arch of azure. Fussy little tugs plodded along, a sea breeze swept bright color into Mary Lou's round cheeks, an airplane droned overhead importantly.

"Mary Lou!" Mary Lou tugged her giddy little beret over one eye and turned to behold her young cousin and charge, Billy Sanderson, leaping up and down on his 6-year-old legs, pinioned to earth only by the string of the red paper kite he held in his fat hand.

"What is it, Billy?" "Jever go up in an airplane, Mary Lou? What makes airplanes stay up? Kin I go up in an airplane, Mary Lou?" inquired Billy, all on a breath.

"No," said Mary Lou, regretfully, "no, Billy, I've never been up in an airplane. They stay up because—" Here Mary Lou, floundering in the sea of her own scanty knowledge, ended firmly, "because of the engine..."

"Autos have engines... they stay down," remarked Billy, helpfully.

"Look," cried Mary Lou, "at the big boat."

While Billy looked and his 20-year-old cousin sighed with relief, the airplane vanished into the horizon, and Billy began formulating other questions, relative to boats, in his busy mind.

Mary Lou sat down on a green and white bench where the drive curved to a wide look-out, topped by a flagpole circled with red autumn flowers.

"Stay right here, Billy Sanderson," she commanded, an anxious eye on the cars sweeping up and down the road.

A Dreamer.

While Billy clambered over the seats and fell into the flower bed, clutching his kite, Mary Lou looked over the water and dreamed.

She was always dreaming. She was round and delectable, pretty and vital. She had red hair and eyes as blue as the water flowing past the sea wall. She had a pert nose and a sweet, gallant, red mouth and the most charming hands and feet in the world. Also, she was slender where slenderness is demanded and curved where curves are necessary for beauty.

Small as a watch charm, lively as a cricket, fresh as a budding rose and dreaming as a May night... this was Mary Lou Thurston, sitting on a green and white bench on Brooklyn's Shore Road—once known as Millionaire's Row—looking at a static ocean liner and wishing herself in Persia or Peru, Afghanistan, India, England—

Not that Mary Lou was unhappy. She was too healthy for unhappiness, too sweet for discontent. But she was as vitally restless as a puppy tugging at his leash. And she was a dreamer born, a weaver of enchanting fairy tales and legends, with the innocent egotism of youth. She read herself into the pages of every book, she saw herself as the heroine of every play she went to. She was always imagining herself in the most amazing, the most enchanting situations.

The side streets off Shore Road are a hodge-podge of architectural "periods"—Civil War and General Grant, Tweed Ring and strictly "modernistic." Rows of red brick houses, each the twin of its neighbor, run along only to be brought up short by a great, sprawling, bay-windowed frame house, built for ease and comfort, sitting back in its own flower garden with perhaps a little vegetable patch added. Now and then, among more pretentious pseudo-Spanish dwellings of cement and stucco and almost wrought-iron balconies, one sees a small frame dwelling of an earlier day, white painted, green shuttered, demure and lovely.

In such a house Mary Lou Thurston lived with her young aunt and uncle, Clara and Howard Sanderson, and their extremely lively youngster, Billy. Mary Lou Thurston was that fast vanishing American, the "home" girl. Once she had had the most charming and delightful parents imaginable, young and careless, happy hearted and improvident. Her father had been a painter—not a very good painter, but a very happy one.

On a tiny income he and his beautiful young wife and Mary Lou had traveled almost all over the world. Then they had come home and there had been an epidemic and presently there was only Mary Lou left to remember. So, at 15, she had come to live with her mother's brother and his wife. And as Billy was a baby and as Mrs. Sanderson had wished to continue with her excellent "job" as secretary to a publisher, Mary Lou had fitted in, a valuable addition to the little household.

Of her own age and sex. All the girls she knew went to business and although she saw them occasionally they seemed somehow to live in another world. Her best friend—But at this juncture he arrived, a slim, spare young man with a freckled face and hair much redder than her own.

"Hello, Mary Lou—hello, Billy—gosh, what a tummy! You'll eat yourself into the grave, my lad. Look out... over you'll go and the kite with you."

A Real Pal.

Larry Mitchell, 26, very inquiring reporter on the Daily Star, plucked Billy from the back of a bench and set him down, tweaked Mary Lou's beret completely over that bright eye and sat himself beside her.

"What, no greetings?" he inquired.

"Of course. What are you doing here this time of day?" asked Mary Lou severely, but her eyes danced. She was very glad to see him. She always was.

"Looking for a murder," was his morbid reply. "Sent over here to scare up a little news. Isn't any. Thought I'd find you here."

Mary Lou had known Larry for three of the five years she had lived with the Sandersons. She had seen him on an average of four times a week ever since. For Larry, dashing out of the Middle Western town which had given him birth to challenge New York with his enthusiasm, his vitality and his typewriter—to say nothing of his insatiable curiosity—was much concerned about Mary Lou's education. Oh, not her book learning—she had enough of that—too much, he thought privately—come at in odd and devious ways—but her education in practical sophistication. He thought her too much the dreamer for this world. He took her on many little jaunts, expensive and innocently gay. They went evenings to funny little Italian places in New York and now and then, when Larry was very "flush," they danced on the Bossert roof of a fine Summer evening. He came daytimes, too, to walk along the sea wall with Mary Lou and Billy, to sit in Fort Hamilton park, and on Autumn Sundays they sometimes went to a polo game at the Fort itself. They went to motion pictures and they went to theaters, the latter excursions generally due to tickets given Larry by the dramatic editor of his paper. They sat on the Sanderson porch when the nights were clear, or, on rainy evenings, inside in the living room, doing crossword puzzles, solving bookish murders, squabbling and laughing like a couple of youngsters.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

Little Mother.

So the youthful Sandersons went forth to work and Mary Lou stayed at home with Billy.

Billy was going to school now, proud as Punch, and Mary Lou had a little more time to herself. But today was Saturday and she and Billy were indulging in their daily airing along the drive. Rain, shine or snow, Billy was bundled up and trotted out for his exercise, like a little racehorse. And he certainly responded to it, being fat, but not too fat, and rosy and almost bursting with energy.

Of course, life wasn't all Billy and spinach, gas stoves and dust mops. Mary Lou had her Sundays and she was free many evenings. Generally, however, she was to be found with her cunning nose stuck in a book. She had many friends fires, the use of cruel and brutal measures of punishment, the persistent recurrence of murder within the prison, the frequent atmosphere of hate and bitterness are sufficient evidence."

The commission also studied the 11,000 police jails and village lockups in the nation. Most of them it found "literally a public nuisance" and "unfit for the purpose for which they are designed."

Thousands of these jails were said to be fire traps. Many are without adequate heating, ventilation or plumbing.

"It is common for young and inexperienced prisoners and even children to be thrown into intimate association for days at a time with vicious, depraved and diseased criminals," the commission said.

Only a small proportion of prisoners need actually be kept behind strong bars and high walls, it was held.

A three-fold program for prison education was laid down by the commission:

1. Prevent deterioration, "which is the almost inevitable by-product of confinement. This is to be accomplished by keeping the inmates busy. The day must be filled from morning until night with as much interesting activity in the form of work, play, education and conversation as possible."

2. Break down undesirable habits.

3. Inculcate new habits and interests.

"Parole must be considered the best means yet devised for releasing prisoners from confinement," the commission said. "It affords the safest method of accomplishing the ex-prisoner's readjustment to the community."

The parole systems in Minnesota, New Jersey and New York were commended. The report urged that all states establish full time central boards to handle all cases and supervise prisoners on parole.

5 High School Students are Rescued from Lake Michigan by Guards

Racine, Wis., July 27.—(UP)—Five high school students, three of them girls, were recovering today after being rescued from chilly Lake Michigan waters by coast guards when their boat overturned.

William Giese, Jr., son of the principal of Washington Park high school, was the owner of the sloop. Others picked up after they had clung to the side of the capsized boat were Betty Taylor, Aileen Freeman, Elizabeth Grether and John Pittinger.

Lindberghs Ready for Hop to Orient

Weeks of preparation have brought Colonel Charles E. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh to the point where they think they will hop off on their flight to the Orient very soon. Their ambitious aerial adventure will take them from New York to Tokyo over a route which does not necessitate any dangerous water jumps. Their first stop out of New York will be Ottawa, Canada, thence to Moose Factory, on to Akilavik at the mouth of the Mackenzie River and then to Nome. The next hop will take them across the Bering Sea and down the coast of Kamchatka. From there they will follow the string of small islands south to Nemuro on the northern coast of Yezo, Japan, and then on to Tokyo. The proposed route is outlined above, with a photo of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh at left and their speedy Lockheed Sirius monoplane at right.
